Section 398 of the Communications Act of 1934, Section 309, Public Telecommunications Financing Act of 1978.

OBJECTIVES:

To enforce Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination because of race, color, or national origin in federally funded programs and activities; Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 which prohibits sex discrimination; the sex equity provisions of the Comprehensive Health Manpower Act and Nurse Training Act of 1971; Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which prohibits discrimination against handicapped persons; and the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, prohibiting discrimination on the basis of age.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Department of Health and Human Services is responsible for ensuring that HHS beneficiaries of federally assisted programs receive benefits without discrimination. These benefits are provided through State agencies, nursing homes, skilled nursing facilities, medical laboratories, hospitals, educational broadcasting facilities, day care centers, and social service agencies. Any person who believes that he or she has been discriminated against in the provision of services because of race, color, national origin, handicap, or age, may file a complaint of grievance with the Office for Civil Rights, Department of Health and Human Services. Individuals may also file complaints of sex discrimination in health training programs receiving Federal financial assistance. The Office will investigate complaints and take corrective steps to ensure equal opportunity.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Obligations:

(Salaries and expenses) FY 79 $24,829,000; FY 80 est $22,177,000; and FY 81 est 24,281,000.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

During fiscal year 1979, 1,405 new complaints of discrimination were filed with OCR, and the Office investigated and closed 1,817 cases, including a large number carried over from previous years. This compares with 1,273 received and 1,044 closed in fiscal year 1978. OCR expects to receive about 1,563 complaints in fiscal year 1980, and a total of over 3,385 in fiscal years 1980 and 1981 combined. The Office also carries OCT self-initiated compliance reviews. During fiscal year 1980, 275 reviews are scheduled. These compliance reviews address a variety of possible discriminatory practices under all of the statutory authorities. They are not necessarily related to individual complaints. OCR personnel working on self-initiated review and assistance activities are responsible for ensuring that persons are not unlawfully discriminated against in federally assisted programs. This purpose is achieved by conducting compliance reviews and monitoring the implementation of remedial plans. In fiscal year 1981 OCR will continue to pursue a multi-faceted strategy to achieve a balanced compliance program. The essential components of the program are complaint investigations, compliance reiews, and activities to encourage voluntary compliance. Special Funds Cleared: A total of several million dollars in special funds was awarded during the 1979 fiscal year to public school districts brought into compliance with civil rights laws by OCR negotiations. The funds, issued under the Emergency School Aid Act, are for projects that will eliminate or reduce minority group is isolation. The Emergency School Aid Act program is now administered by the U.S. Department of Education. In reviewing 1979 applications, OCR found 92 applications initially ineligible for the funds. Fifty-seven applicants corrected the violations and were granted the money. Higher Education Desegregation: in 1979 The Office for Civil Rights negotiated acceptable agreements on plans to desegregate the State systems of higher education in Virginia, Arkansas, Florida, Oklahoma and Georgia. As a result of these plans, equal educational opportunity will be advanced for all citizens while allowing the States to maintain standards of academic excellence. This program is now administered by the Department of Education. Technical Assistance: Most technical assistance services are used to support compliance and monitoring activities. The projects include developing and disseminating compliance information, conducting workshops for grantees, designing model compliance plans for various types of covered programs, and training State and local officials who are responsible for achieving compliance. OCR will continue to assist recipients in complying with Section 504 and other civil rights laws. These activities are intended to provide recipients with the skills needed to apply the statute to particular circumstances. As a result, the technical assistance program promises significant long-term benefits by helping to prevent and eliminate discriminatory practices. Annual Operating Plan: For an analysis of Office for Civil Rights activities for fiscal year 1980, see Annual Operating Plan for Fiscal Year 1980, FEDERAL REGISTER, vol. 44 No. 250, Friday, December 28, 1979.

Geological Survey operates 12,700 gaging stations for measurement of streamflow, 4,200 water quality sites, and 21,400 observation wells for recording changes in ground water storage, as part of the Cooperative Program. Data from these stations are released in the Water-Data Reports series and other publications. Information on water resources investigations is released through the Water-Supply Paper, Professional Paper, Water-Resources Investigations, Circular, and Hydrologic Atlas series of the Geological Survey, and through reports published by the State organizations giving results of some cooperative projects of the Geological Survey and State and local agencies. Typical projects are either hydrologic data collection (streamflow, stream and ground-water quality, etc.), or areal studies such as of the quantity and quality of water resources (surface and/or underground) of a county, irrigation district, city, State, aquifer (ground water), or river basin. The resulting information is then published, as noted above. In fiscal year 1979, there were 587 joint funding agreements representing the financial cooperation of more than 800 non-Federal agencies with the Geological Survey to carry out water resources investigations.

Competition is keen between State Institutes for the limited funds available.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

16.100 DESEGREGATION OF PUBLIC EDUCATION

AUTHORIZATION:

Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IV; Public Law 88-352; 42 U.S.C. 2000c; Public Law 92-261; Title VI; Public Law 88-352; 42 U.S.C. 2000 d.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

The Justice Department may go to court to obtain an order to desegregate a public school or public college. The Attorney General acts on the basis of a meritorious written complaint from (1) any parent or group of parents whose minor children are being deprived by a school board of equal protection of the laws; or (2) any individual or parent of an individual who has been denied admission to or not permitted to continue in attendance at a public college because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin. The Attorney General must certify that the suit will materially further the orderly process of desegregation. In addition, the Attorney General may litigate Title VI referals received from the Office of Education, previously the Department of Health Education and Welfare, to vendicate the rights of individuals excluded from participation in, denied the benefits of, or subject to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance on account of their race, color or national origin. The Department of Justice may not bring suit unless the person complaining is unable to sue either because of financial reasons or because of intimidation.

16.103 FAIR HOUSING AND EQUAL CREDIT OPPORTUNITY

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

During fiscal year 1979, the Division filed 26 pattern and practice suits and 2 motions for contempt and/or supplemental relief under the Fair Housing Act. These actions were taken in cases in 18 different States, and potentially affect about 15,000 units of housing. Twenty-one of these cases involved discriminatory rental or sales practices by the owners or oprators of apartments, rental services, trailer parks, or residential or recreational developments. Most of the 21 cases involved racial discrimination; five involved sex discrimination; four involved national origin discrimination (against Chicanos, Iranians, and Pakistani); and one involved religous discrimination. In addition, four cases alleged racial discrimination by public housing authorities; two alleged racial steering and blockbusting; and one alleged racial intimidation and interference by neighbors. Also during fiscal year 1979, consent decrees were entered in 20 housing discrimination cases (eight of which had been commenced in prior years). Several of the new cases filed during the year involved novel issues. A suit against an Alabama public housing authority challenged the use of a residency requirement as a prerequisite for admission to tenancy where the authority is located in a city that is virtually all-white. A suit against a Florida real estate broker challenged the use of the"farming" technique of uninvited solicitations, where it was used in a racially changing subdivision with a prior history of blockbusting activity. A suit against a Colorado landlord challenged the use of a citizenship requirement which had the effect of discriminating against Iranians on the basis of their national origin, as well as another practice which had a discriminatory effect upon Chicanos. A Pennsylvania suit challenged the use of a scoring system for rating prospective tenants which discounted wives' incomes and length of employment. Another of the new cases filed alleging racial discrimination was based in part on "testing" evidence from a program conducted by the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing under a contract with the Department of Housing and Urban Development. In two noteworthy cases in Arkansas, public housing authorities charged with racial discrimination intenant assignment agreed to consent decrees which provide opportunities for transfers of incumbent tenants, and for future assignments to be made on a racially integrative basis. This relief was designed to overcome the effects of past discrimination in the most expeditious fashion possible. In a case filed less than two weeks after an emergency situation came to the Section's attention, a preliminary injunction was obtained restraining an Atlanta landlord from evicting or failing to renew the leases of Iranian tenants because of their national origin. Siginificant appellate matters in the housing area included a favorable ruling in the Supreme Court, in a case in which the United States participated as amicus curiae, on private parties' standing to sue under the Fair Housing Act to challenge steering practices; a favorable ruling in the Section's suit against the City of Black Jack, Missouri, on the city's obligation to take affirmative steps to assist in the development of multi-racial low cost housing and an unfavorable court of appeals decision on the question of the United States' authority under Title VIII to seek relief in the form of damages for victims of discrimination. Also during fiscal year 1979 an extensive field investigation was carried out by a Hispanic Discrimination Task Force to document possible discrimination in housing which the Section could address by litigation. While the results of this investigation were disappointing, in that no litigable cases were discovered, the community contacts which resulted were helpful and may lead to information that will warrant litigation. During the 1979 fiscal year, the Division brought five cases under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA). The dedendants included creditors who have nationwide operations and who collectively process several million credit applications each year. In one suit alone the defendant operates over 2,000 branch offices and receives approximately 4,000,000 credit applications annually. Complaints were based on alleged discriminatory conduct relating to age, sex, or marital status discrimination, or failure to provide credit applicants with adequate reasons for adverse action. One complaint also charged a creditor with discriminating against applicants because all or part of their income was derived from a public assistance program. In addition, the Section filed two amicus curiae briefs in private ECOA cases, one of which led to a ruling that a practice which had a discriminatory effect would violate the Act. In the past year four ECOA cases were resolved through the entry of consent decrees.

16.104 PROTECTION OF VOTING RIGHTS

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

During fiscal year 1979, the Division's voting rights litigation efforts focused primarily on twenty-two cases of which seven were new cases. The twenty-two cases consisted of seven where the use of apportionment plans of electoral methods were directly challenged as diluting minorities' voting rights, fourteen to enforce the pre-clearance requirements of Section 5, and one in which an attempt by the State of Alaska to terminate its special coverage under the Voting Rights Act ultimately resulted in a voluntary dismissal by the State. Among these cases were five where the decisions of Federal district courts presaged the end to fourteen years of litigation in Mississippi over redistricting plans. Orders by two courts in separate but related cases involving racially based challenges to Mississippi's State legislative districts cleared the way for that State's 1979 elections, and action in three other separate but related cases set the stage for the first legally enforceable elections since 1967 under a racially fair districting plan in Warren County, Mississippi. The State legislative districting of Mississippi had been in litigation since 1965, and the districting of Warren County had been in dispute since an objection was interposed by the Attorney General to the county's initial redistricting plan in 1971. Also nearing an end was litigation begun in 1976 involving the City of Rome, Georgia, where the Division obtained another district court order that refuses to weaken the force of Section 5 or to find that the Voting Rights Act is unconstitutional as the city urged in this litigation over a Section 5 objection to the city's attempt to impose new racially restrictive requirements on the voting process and to dilute minorities' voting rights. Among other judicial decisions during the year, courts upheld the Division's decisions that an independent Section 5 review by the Attorney General was required of a Dallas, Texas, reapportionment even though it had been judicially found to be constitutional, and held that Houston, Texas, could not allow persons in virtually all-white annexed areas to affect city elections until the city first complied with Section 5 submission procedures and then took steps to modify city election procedures to cure the dilutive impact on minorities' voting rights that caused the Attorney General's objection to the voting changes occasioned by the annexations. In addition, the Department filed the first case to enforce the language minority provisions of Section 203 of the Voting Rights Act, a case which was prepared and filed by the San Francisco U.S. Attorney's office with advice and guidance from the Division, where preliminary court decisions mandated the city to provide bilingual materials and assistnce to Chinese and Spanish speaking citizens and provided the certification necessary for the assignment of Federal observers during the city's November 1978 election. In fiscal year 1979, 1,914 submissions involving a total of 3,420 voting-related changes were submitted to the Attorney General under Section 5. Objections were entered to twenty-three submissions, including an objection to Mississippi legislation (an open primary law) that would have eliminated one of the few positions in which minorities are represented as county-level officials responsible for the election process and would have significantly reduced minorities' opportunities to elect candidates of their choice; an objection to another Mississippi law that would have seriously restricted the ability of minority voters to gain assistance in casting their ballot; and an objection to the voting effect of annexations to Houston, Texas, a matter that the city resolved by adopting fairly drawn single-member districts for the election of 9 out of 14 city council members, a system which replaces one which elected 9 members at-large prior to our objection. Under provisions of the Voting Rights Act which authorize the Attorney General to assign observers to monitor elections to ensure that the right to vote and to have the vote properly counted is not denied during the election process, 972 observers were assigned to cover nine elections in five States, including elections in three of four counties that were initially certified by the Attorney General during fiscal year 1979. Observers at the 1978 general election in San Francisco, California, were assigned following the first certification of a county made by a Federal court under Section 3 of the Voting Rights Act in a lawsuit brought under the language minority provisions of Section 203 of the Act. The total number of Federal observers assigned during the 1979 fiscal year is the third largest number of observers to cover elections in any single fiscal year during the past decade. Nearly two-thirds of the Federal observers in fiscal year 1979 were assigned for the 1979 primary and primary runoff elections in the State of Mississippi. Administrative actions included an enlargement and major reorganization of the paraprofessional unit that processes and analyzes Section 5 submission. This reorganization was designed to improve Section 5 preclearance efficiency by streamlining the unit's management functions and administrative processes, and improve preclearance effectiveness by providing greater coordination with the Division's litigation activities and by enhancing the professional development of the unit staff. In other administrative actions the Division instituted modifications in the Federal observer program designed to improve election day communications among Federal personnel and to provide greater flexibility in conducting election day activities. In addition, the Division contributed to the Federal Election Commission's efforts to provide election administrators with a report on the language minority provisions of the Voting Rights Act and a Division representative participated in workshops sponsored by the Commission to inform election administrators about Federal laws regarding absentee voter registration and balloting and the Division worked with the staff of the Department of Defense's Federal Voter Assistance Program in their efforts to gather and prepare information for dissemination as required by the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act and the Federal Voters Assistance Act.

16.105 DESEGREGATION OF PUBLIC FACILITIES

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Attorney General may bring suit for an injunction prohibiting discrimination on account of race, color, religion, or national origin in operation of public facilities when he receives, and certifies as meritorious, a written complaint from a person who is unable to bring suit either because of financial reasons or possible intimidation. The Attorney General may intervene in suits of general public importance alleging denial of the equal protection of the laws on account of race, color, religion or national origin and is entitled to the same relief as if he had instituted the suit. The Attorney General has the enforcement mission to correct widespread deprivation of civil rights of persons confined in penal and non-penal institutions. In May, 1980, the Civil Rights of Institutionalized Persons Act became law. This Act authorizes the Attorney to initiate suit on behalf of persons confined in institutions where there exists a pattern or practice of "egregious and flagrant" conditions.

Title II B and C - 85 percent of available funds are allocated to prime sponsors according to the following formula in fiscal year 1980: Two thirds of this amount is allocated based on the prime sponsor's proportion of 1) employment and training funds obligated under Title I of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 in fiscal year 1979 compared to the sums received by all States under such title in that year (50 percent); 2) total number of unemployed persons in all prime sponsor's areas (37-1/2 percent); 3) number of adults in low income families (12-1/2 percent). The remaining one third of funds are allocated among prime sponsors in accordance with the prime sponsor's proportion of unemployed persons residing in areas of substantial unemployment. Individual prime sponsor allocations are adjusted to assure that no prime sponsor will receive less than 90 percent of the employment and training funds allocated to its area for the prior fiscal year. States are allocated one percent to their State Employment and Training Council for the costs incurred in carrying out provisions of section 110; 4 percent of the total B and C allocation for Governor's coordination and special services under section 105, and where deemed necessary by the Governor for additional support of State Employment and Training Council; 6 percent of the total funds available under Parts B and C for financial assistance for vocational education; one percent of funds available under the entire Title II for encouraging coordination and establishing linkages between prime sponsors and appropriate educational agencies and institutions. Title II D - At least 85 percent of the funds available are allocated among prime sponsors based on the proportion of total unemployed persons residing in each area of substantial unemployment to all such areas' unemployed, the sponsors' share of "families with an annual income below the low-income levels" and the sponsors' share of "excess" (more than 4-1/2 percent of the labor force) unemployed persons (25 percent for each factor). Title IV - YCCIP--75 percent of the funds are allocated among the States on the basis of the relative number of unemployed persons within each State as compared to all States except that not less than one-half of 1 percent shall be allocated for projects under this subpart within any one State and not less than one-half of 1 percent shall be allocated in the aggregate for projects in Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. YETP - 75 percent of funds available are allocated to prime sponsors according to formula: 37.5 percent by share of all unemployed persons; 37.5 percent by share of all unemployed persons residing in areas of substantial unemployment; and 25 percent by share of persons in low-income Families. Five percent of funds available are allocated to Governors, for state-wide youth services, using the same formula. SYEP - 95 percent of funds available are allocated to prime sponsors according to formula: 50 percent by share of SYEP funds in previous year; 37.5 percent by share of all unemployed persons; and 12.5 percent by share of adults in low-income families; except that each prime sponsor shall receive an allocation which, when added to its unexpended allocation for the previous fiscal year, shall be at least equal to the equal to the amount available to it for its summer program in the previous fiscal year. Title VI - Not less than 85 percent of the funds appropriated are allotted as follows: (a) 50 percent in proportion to each area's share of all unemployed persons; (b) 25 percent in proportion to the area's share of all unemployed persons in excess of 4.5 percent of the labor force; and (c) 25 percent among areas of substantial (6.5 percent for 3 consecutive months) unemployment as defined in the CETA regulations. Title VII -- 95 percent of funds available are allocated to prime sponsors as provided for in Title II-B. Minimum allocated levels may be established to ensure that every prime sponsor receives an allocation sufficient to mount a viable program. No less than 2 percent of funds is used to support PSIP programs for Native American entities. Additional funding is provided to prime sponsors that establish a single PIC that serves a substantial portion of a labor market area.

OBJECTIVES:

To provide standards protecting wages of working persons by requiring a minimum hourly wage rate and overtime pay. Additional standards apply to child labor and to protection of employee from discrimination for engagement in certain "whistleblower" activities.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Federal wage and hour standards apply generally to employees engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or in the production of goods for such commerce or in enterprises so engaged. For covered employment the minimum hourly wage is $3.10 ($3.35 per hour beginning January 1, 1981), with time and one-half required for hours worked over 40 in a work week. To the extent necessary to prevent curtailment of employment opportunity, certificates authorizing special minimum wage rates are issued for learners, handicapped workers, full-time students, student workers, and apprentices. Failure to comply with the child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act may result in an assessment of a civil money penalty not to exceed $1,000 for each violation. Employees of contractors performing on most federally financed or assisted construction projects, or providing services under contract to Federal agencies, are subject to special standards. These special standards require that employees receive no less than the wages and fringe benefits prevailing in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor, and that daily and weekly overtime compensation be paid. The standards apply to performance on direct Federal contracts and also to most construction projects financed in whole or in part by the Federal Government (e.g., projects under the Revenue Sharing Act of 1972 and National Housing Act). For Federal and federally assisted construction and Federal service contracts subject to prevailing wage requirements, contracting agencies must request a wage determination from the Wage and Hour Division. An employee is protected from discharge or other forms of discrimination under the so-called "whistleblower" provisions of several environmental impact laws, where the employee testifies in or otherwise assists a proceeding or other investigation of a violation of one of these statutes. A protected employee may obtain reinstatement to the former position and/or other forms of redress.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Deadlines:

For most of the Acts, 2 year statute of limitations applies to the recovery of back wages; in the case of willful violations a 3 year limitation applies. A 30 day time limit applies to whistleblower Statutes.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary presents to the public a variety of courses, from one to thirteen lessons, all concerned with safe boating. Courtesy Marine Examinations (CME), which are checks of a boat's safety-related equipment, are made with the owner's permission. Boats passing the CME are given a "Seal of Safety" decal indicating that at the time of the exam the boat met Federal regulations and safety-related equipment requirements of the State in which the exam was conducted and also satisfied Auxiliary requirements. If deficiencies are found, the owner is advised but no report is made to any law enforcement authority. In their own boats, Auxiliary members patrol marine regattas and parades and assist fellow boaters in distress. Since members are civilian volunteers, the thrust of their efforts coincides with the busiest boating period. Publications in boating safety and accident reporting are also available.

20.205 HIGHWAY RESEARCH, PLANNING, AND CONSTRUCTION

AUTHORIZATION:

Title 23 U.S.C., "Highways"; Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973, Public Law 93-87; Federal-Aid Highway Amendments of 1974, Public Law 93-643; Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1976, Public Law 94-280; Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1978, Public Law 95-599 as amended by Public Law 96-106.

OBJECTIVES:

To assist State highway agencies (SHA) in constructing and rehabilitating the Interstate highway system and building or improving primary, secondary, and urban systems roads and streets, to provide aid for their repair following disasters, to foster safe highway design; to replace or rehabilitate unsafe bridges; and to enhance bicycle transportation. Also provides for the improvement of some highways in Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Depending on which aspect of the program funds are applied to, they may be used for planning, surveying, research, engineering, right-of-way acquisition, new construction, reconstruction, repair, improvement, restoration, rehabilitation, resurfacing, roadside beautification, and recreation. Funds may be applied to highways, bridges, bicycle transportation, pedestrian walkways, fringe and corridor parking facilities, and rest areas. All capital projects in urban areas of more than 50,000 population must be based on a continuing comprehensive planning process. These funds cannot participate in any maintenance activities, such as pothole patching. Some county and local roads and streets may be part of a Federal-aid system and are eligible for improvement, but only through State highway agency coordination and action. Selected Interstate and non-Interstate authorizations may be used for mass transit capital improvements at the request of State and local governments. Special programs for highway safety, bridge reconstruction, and railroad grade crossing protection are also available for roads both on and off Federal-aid systems. This program is eligible for joint funding but the initiative lies with the State Highway Agency. The State Highway Agency is responsible for reviewing and rejecting or approving on a final basis specific State projects. JOINT FUNDING: This program is considered suitable for joint funding with closely related Federal financial assistance programs in accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-111. For programs that are not identified as suitable for joint funding, the applicant may consult the headquarters or field office of the appropriate funding agency for further information on statutory or other restrictions involved.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility:

State highway agencies. Projects related to bicycle transportation and forest and public lands highway, certain projects in urban areas, or projects off the State highway systems may be proposed by counties and other political subdivisions or agencies through the State highway agencies. Territorial highway projects are funded in the same manner as other Federal-aid highway projects, with the territorial highway agency functioning as the State highway agency.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Application Procedure:

State highway agencies submit a program of desired projects to the State-level office of the Federal Highway Administration; for projects related to forest highways and bicycle transportation, submissions are made to the Regional Federal Highway Administrator.

Deadlines:

With regular formula programs, there are no deadlines for funding requests. For the limited number of discretionary project grants, applications are usually considered late in the fiscal year before the year for which the funds are available. Grants are generally made early in the fiscal year. All grants are made through the SHAs, which are advised of schedules for submission of candidates. Bicycle grant deadlines, are at the discretion of the FHWA Regional Administrators (see Appendix IV for addresses and phone numbers).

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance:

Except for the Interstate program, Federal-aid highway funds become available at the beginning of the fiscal years for which they are authorized, and must be obligated within 3 years after close of that fiscal year. Interstate funds became available 1 year prior to the beginning of the fiscal year for which they are authorized, and must be obligated by the close of that fiscal year. Bicycle grant funds depend on the appropriation legislation.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Obligations:

(Grants) FY 79 $8,623,732,000; FY 80 est $7,706,618,935; and FY 81 est $8,500,000,000.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance:

$18,594,000 to $528,283,000; $142,497,000.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Construction contracts worth approximately $8.6 billion were awarded in fiscal year 1979 for 6,859 highway and bridge construction and reconstruction projects. From Federal-aid funds, construction was started on 3,580 bridges during 1979, 1,200 of which were being replaced or rehabilitated with special bridge funds. Preparation for construction was initiated on an additional 1,260 bridges with special bridge funds.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

On the Interstate highway system, 365 new miles were opened to traffic in the 12 months ending March 31, 1980. A total of 39,835 miles or 93.7 percent of the proposed Interstate System is open to traffic, with construction or improvement underway on 3,734 miles. Over $147 million in emergency relief funding was obligated in fiscal year 1979 for the repair and reconstruction of highways and bridges damaged by disasters in recent years. During fiscal year 1979, emergency relief assistance was extended to an additional 17 disasters in 16 States. The replacement or rehabilitation of 2,460 additional deficient bridges was initiated in 1979, with $822 million of special bridge funds. Traffic signal projects funded at 100 percent of regular Federal highway funds. System improvements can result in an annual fuel reduction of 4,000 to 10,000 gallons per year per signal improved. When signal systems already exist, new timing plans to achieve better signal progression can reduce annual fuel consumption between 4,000 and 6,000 gallons. Over $1.5 billion for safety improvements to existing highways, including $500 million of special safety funds for railroad grade crossing protection, eliminating roadside obstacles, correcting high hazard locations, and improving pavement markings. Forty-one new ridesharing projects were initiated in fiscal year 1979, including carpool and vanpool matching, marketing and promotional activities. In fiscal year 1980 $4 million was provided for bikeway construction and nonconstruction projects which enhance the safety and use of bicycles.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

To be eligible, most projects must be located on one of the designated Federal-aid systems and included in a statewide (or areawide) program of projects submitted for Federal approval. Legislative language restricts some authorization to projects on a particular Federal-aid system (Interstate, primary, secondary, urban), and other authorizations to particular types of projects (bridge replacement and reconstruction, hazard elimination, emergency relief, bicycle transportation etc.). Proposed projects meeting these and other design, environmental, safety, etc. standards can be approved on the basis of State and local priorities within the limit of the funds apportioned or allocated to each State.

45.111 PROMOTION OF THE HUMANITIES—HIGHER EDUCATION/REGIONAL AND NATIONAL GRANTS

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE:

Project Grants (for collaborative design of curriculum, production of curriculum materials, or institutes).

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility:

Two-year and four-year public and private colleges, universities, and nonprofit educational organizations. For humanities institutes, public and private two-year and four-year colleges, universities and professional and educational associations with demonstrated faculty interest and expertise in the subject and appropriate library facilities.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Obligations:

(Grants) FY 79 $4,939,000; FY 80 $5,000,000; and FY 81 est $5,100,000.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

In FY 1979, 113 applications were received and 59 were made. Approximately 1,600 institutions over fiscal years 1977, 1978, and 1979 were aided (18 percent of the program's target universe). At least 12,000 people have directly drawn benefit from Higher Education/Regional and National funds through student use of materials, faculty development programs, etc. It is not possible to determine accurately the number of students directly aided through programs of Higher Education/Regional and National grants, because the numbers vary widely from project to project. For example, a project to prepare ten manuals in advanced Chinese languages for graduate students in East Asian Studies may directly benefit only 150 students per year, but those students represent the nation's future generation of Chinese scholars and diplomats. In the other extreme, one anthropological film study of a rural Greek village has been seen by at least 50,000 students in this country over the past three years and has been broadcast by German television. Humanities Institutes alone directly affect the classroom instruction of 65,000 students. Exemplary grants of this program must be viewed against the national background. In an era of declining undergraduate enrollments, higher education has had to take cognizance of changing clientele. Add to this scarcer financial resources and the glut of Ph.D.'s, the national scene has not been a happy one. The Higher Education/Regional and National program has sought to refresh faculty members from all kinds of institutional settings, especially those from small private colleges, community colleges, and colleges and universities which have not traditionally taught humanities courses. It has made grants for programs which allow faculty to update their knowledge of recent developments within their own academic fields (new social history), which educate faculty in disciplines that are allied to their own fields--especially in areas in which connections with other disciplines have not traditionally been made (engineering and architecture), and programs which extend the humanities to new institutions and invite participation by new groups (law enforcement trainers' institute).

INFORMATION CONTACTS:

Headquarters Office:

Blanche Premo, Assistant Director, Higher Education/Regional-National Programs, National Endowment for the Humanities, MS 202, Washington, DC 20506. Telephone: (202) 724-0311.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Higher Education/Regional-National Projects grants support the development and testing of imaginative approaches to humanities education for activites that address significant regional or national need. The following are questions which reviewers are asked to consider in rating and evaluating proposals: - How exemplary is the project? Is it substanitial intellectually? - Does the project contribute to humanities education in a significant way? - has it been demonstrated that there is a clear need for a project and that this project will help to meet that need, regionally or nationally? - If this project is a Humanities Institute, will it attract the participants for whom it is designed? - If this project is for the development of curriculum materials, have existing materials in the field been adequately surveyed? - How realistic and practicable is the plan for completing the project? - Do the project director and members of the staff possess the experience and qualifications necessary and appropriate for the satisfactory conduct of the project? - Are provisions for evaluation adequate? - Does the plan for dissemination address the appropriate audience? - How satisfactory is the proposed budget? Is there a convincing rationale for NEH support or does it appear that the insititution could support the project out of its own resoruces?

45.140 PROMOTION OF THE HUMANITIES—BASIC RESEARCH

OBJECTIVES:

To advance basic research that is interpretative in all fields of the humanities. Collaborative, interdisciplinary scholarship involving the efforts of several individuals at the professional, post-doctoral, and assistant levels is encouraged. Foreign and domestic archaeology projects are supported in the Program.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Preapplication Coordination:

Preliminary inquiries should be made prior to formal application. Written inquiries from two to three pages in length should include a statement of the projects' purpose, a brief description of the methodology to be employed, the plan of the work, the duration of the project, and an estimated budget.

Application Procedure:

Direct application to Division of Research Programs, National Endowment for the Humanities. Guidelines and application instructions provided by the Division upon receipt of initial inquiry outlining eligible project. This program is subject to the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-110. The standard application forms as furnished by the Federal agency and required by OMB Circular No. A-102 must be used for this program by entities of State and local governments.

Award Procedure:

Applications are reviewed both by experts in the subject area and by panels of research scholars and other appropriate individuals. Awards are made by the Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities after recommendation by the National Council on the Humanities. Notification of awards must be made to the designated State Central Information Reception Agency in accordance with Treasury Circular 1082.

Deadlines:

April 1, 1981 (projects may begin after January 1, 1982) for all disciplines except archaeology which has an October 15 deadline (for projects to start after April 1 the following year).

Appeals:

None. Applicants may reapply at the next deadline.

Renewals:

Renewal grants are infrequently made and are processed as new applications.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Obligations:

(Grants) FY 79 $2,204,000; FY 80 $2,400,000; and FY 81 est $5,200,000.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance:

Range: $5,000 and rarely exceed $300,000; Average: $40,000.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

The program supports a wide range of scholarship of an original, interpretive nature. In fiscal year 1980, 201 applications were received and 60 awards were made in support of research in the disciplines of anthropology, archaeology, art history, economic history, ethnic studies, ethnography, history (United States, Africa, China, Germany, Great Britian, India, Mexico, and Eastern Europe), history of science, journalism, linguistics, literature, music history, philosophy of science, religion, and sociology. Through projects in archaeology the program encourages understanding of the origins of civilization. Both American and foreign archaeological projects are being funded.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

(1) An award was made to the University of California at Berkeley for sociological research on the moral beliefs and practices in America. The project involves the efforts of five researchers who will coordinate their complementary tasks under the advice of a distinguished advisory committee to produce an integrated publication. (2) Two scholars from Yale University have undertaken research in Chinese calligraphy, an area where relatively little work in English has been done to date. (3) A grant to the Center for Applied Linguistics is enabling a trained linguist to carry out a systematic investigation of changes in language among Romanians living in the United States. (4) An architectural historian and a cultural anthropologist are studying how urban design was influenced by French colonial policy in the construction of cities in the former French colonies of Vietnam and Morocco. (5) Archaeologists from the American School of Classical Studies at Athens are continuing their exploration of the Agora, the ancient market place of Athens. Excavations on the northern side of the area are seeking the remains of the famous stoas, or colonnades, known to have been built there in the 5th century.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Due to growing competition for funds, only the most highly rated projects receive support. Emphasis is on the significance of the research project to the advancement of the field. Projects should be well defined and specifically focused.

45.141 PROMOTION OF THE HUMANITIES—STATE, LOCAL AND REGIONAL STUDIES

OBJECTIVES:

To encourage the production of original research and writing relating to the history and customs of regions and communities in the United States drawing upon various disciplines in the humanities such as economics, history, politics, languages and literature, folklore, archaeology, and art history; to encourage cooperation among scholars and citizens in developing and using the resources of the humanities.

Grants in the Program relate historical scholarship to community self-understanding. In fiscal year 1979, 113 applications were received and 33 grants were made. In fiscal year 1980 approximately 40 grants are expected to be made, from roughly 1 out of 5 applications received, with a comparable level for fiscal year 1981. Areas receiving support include history, folklore, and ethnic studies. Awards have involved the collaborative efforts of scholars and professionals in historical societies or unaffiliated individuals. Several grants involve public outreach through seminars or interpretative exhibits in addition to a publication.

45.142 PROMOTION OF THE HUMANITIES—FELLOWSHIPS FOR INDEPENDENT STUDY AND RESEARCH

OBJECTIVES:

To provide time for uninterrupted study and research to scholars, teachers, and other interpreters of the humanities who can make significant contributions to thought and knowledge in the humanities. The fellowships free applicants from the day-to-day responsibilities of teaching and other work for extended periods of uninterrupted, full-time study and research so that fellows may enlarge their contributions and continue to develop their abilities as scholars and interpreters of the humanities. While continuing its commitment to the work of established senior scholars, the Endowment, through this program, particularly wishes to encourage and sustain the work of younger scholars. This includes both those who hold the rank of instructor or assistant professor and those who, while not affiliated with any academic institutions, stand at an early stage of their careers.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Deadlines:

June 1, 1981 (for academic year 1982-83).

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Obligations:

(Grants) FY 79 $2,895,000; FY 80 est $2,815,000; and FY 81 est $2,900,000.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance:

Up to $11,000 for 6 months and up to $22,000 for 12 months; the average stipend is $18,500.

45.143 PROMOTION OF THE HUMANITIES—FELLOWSHIPS FOR COLLEGE TEACHERS

OBJECTIVES:

To provide opportunities for college teachers to pursue full-time independent study and research that will enhance their abilities as teachers and interpreters of the humanities. These fellowships are intended for those teachers whose day-to-day responsibilities lie in undergraduate teaching and who have made and will continue to make their contribution to the humanities more through the teaching of undergraduate students than through publication of research and the supervision of graduate students. The ultimate purpose of these fellowships is to improve the quality of college teaching in the humanities and work proposed may be either a study program or a research project, whichever individual applicants judge to be more appropriate to their needs and concerns.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Proposals may address issues in the substance of applicants' courses and problems connected with their teaching, their research interests, or issues in the humanities of more general interest. Applicants may propose work within their own areas of competence and interest or in some other area which will enable them to understand their own fields better, to extend their competence, and to become more broadly informed. Projects may be concerned with wide-ranging interpretive interests or with work in specialized fields. Depending on the purpose of a given projects, the value of its results to its intended audience--such as the applicant's students, other teachers, or a wider public--will be a consideration in the evaluation of applications in this program. Pedagogical training, curriculum planning development of teaching materials, work in the creative arts, work of sectarian nature, and studies whose content or methods are not humanistic are ineligible for consideration.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility:

Applications are expected to come principally from teachers in two-year, four-year, and five-year colleges and universities. Faculty members at institutions which are oriented toward research, particularly universities with Ph.D. programs in the humanities and those undergraduate colleges which place heavy emphasis on research and where the resources and aids for research are strong, will need to make an exceptional case for the appropriateness of their applying in this program. Since these fellowships are awarded to individuals, State, local governments and U.S. territories are ineligible. Applicants must have completed their professional training before applying. Active candidates for degrees are not eligible, nor are persons seeking support for work leading toward degrees. Applicants should be U.S. citizens, native residents of U.S. territories, or foreign nationals who have lived in the U.S. for at least three years immediately preceding the date of application.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Award Procedure:

Applications are reviewed by panels of college and university teachers. Awards are made by the Chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities upon recommendation by the National Council on the Humanities.

Deadlines:

June 1, 1981, for 1982-83.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

In fiscal year 1979, 937 applications were received and 145 fellowships were awarded. In fiscal year 1980, 939 applications were received and 164 fellowships were offered. Approximately 160 fellowships are expected to be offered in fiscal year 1981.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The quality of the applicant's work or promise of quality, as a teacher and interpreter of the humanities; the applicant's commitment as an undergraduate teacher; the importance of the study or research to the applicant's work as a teacher and interpreter of the humanities generally; the conception, definition, and organization of the study; and the likelihood of completion.

45.144 PROMOTION OF THE HUMANITIES—RESIDENTIAL FELLOWSHIPS FOR COLLEGE TEACHERS

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

Seven seminars were offered during academic year 1979-80 in the major disciplines of the humanities and the humanistic social sciences; the number of participants in each ranges from 6 to 12. In 1979 233 applications were received and 65 fellowships were awards. Seven seminars are also being offered in 1980-81, for which 221 applications were received and 63 fellowships were awarded. In 1981-82, seven seminars will be offered and, funds permitting, 65 fellowships will be awarded.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

A seminar was entitled "The 'Primitive' and 'Civilized' in the History of Religions". One participant in this seminar studied the meaning of tradition in Hinduism and in its Western perceptions. Another seminar for 2-year college teachers addressed the subject of ethnicity and race in the city. One individual's project focussed on race and ethnicity in the criminal justice system, while another participant did a comparative study of urban minority women. The seminar entitled "Courts in American Society: A Consumer Perspective" enabled its participants to examine topics such as campaign finance reform, the Federal courts and prison conditions, and the changing nature of America's association with the courts.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

The applicant's quality and commitment as a college teacher; the importance of the project as a contribution to the excellence of teaching in the humanities; the conception, definition, and organization of the proposed program of personal study and research; and the applicant's qualifications to do the work of the seminar and to contribute to it.

During fiscal year 1980, the program received 202 proposals and made 59 awards. In fiscal year 1981, estimated applications should total 215; anticipated grants, 77. Current awards for research tools and reference works help make possible bibliographic control in major fields of the humanities and the creation of dictionaries, both lexical and biographical, for research and general reference. The program presently support 45 projects which will create or make accessible materials important for the writing of American social history and 20 projects which will prepare materiaals significant for continued research in Afro-American studies, women's studies, and Native-American studies.

NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS BOARD

46.001 LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Determines and implements, through secret-ballot elections, the free democratic choice by employees as to whether they wish to be represented by a union in dealing with their employer and, if so, by which union, and (2) prevents and remedies unlawful acts, called unfair labor practices, by either employers or unions or both. NLRB may seek injunctive relief where a labor dispute results in violence, disruption of employment, or disruption of business relations, possibly in violation of the Labor Management Relations Act. The NLRB does not initiate actions or investigations on its own motion. NLRB processes start only when an individual or an organization files an unfair labor practice charge or a petition for an election.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Deadlines:

A party alleging a violation of the Labor Management Relations Act must file its charge within six (6) months after incident has occurred. If the filing of a charge was prevented by service with the Armed Forces, the six (6) month limitation is computed from the day of discharge. Deadlines for filing representation petitions vary with the type of petition filed and the representation status of employees sought to be represented. Those wishing to file representation petitions with the Agency should contact the appropriate regional office of the National Labor Relations Board listed in Appendix IV.

REGULATIONS, GUIDELINES, AND LITERATURE:

45 CFR Chapter VI; 41 CFR 25; Guide to Programs 1980; "Guide to Science Education Programs," NSF SE-81-1; and program announcements listed in these guides (all at no charge).

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Through one project, 125 minority high school students are engaged in small team projects in mechanical design, solar energy, or electrical engineering. These projects are designed to give them direct experience in applying scientific principles to the solution of engineering problems and first hand information on careers and academic requirements for the study of engineering. In another project, a comprehensive plan to increase the number of Hispanics and Native Americans entering scientific and engineering careers was developed. Based on a state-wide model to be implemented in New Mexico, the plan entails collaborative efforts of the Federal government, the State government (both executive and legislative branches), industries, universities and other educational units, professional societies, and minority organizations. In the states of Washington and Oregon, a visiting scientist program for physically handicapped students, entitled "Expanding Career Options in Science", has been initiated. Handicapped scientists are visiting rural and small town schools and meeting with handicapped students, their counselors, teachers, and parents. In addition to providing role models, the scientists explain how they work, how one becomes a scientist, and describe career prospects. Through a grant, a Science Faculty member plans to study the natural and artificial changes which took place in the coastal zones, including surfing zones, beaches, beach cliffs, and selected adjacent terraces of southern California, northern Baja California, and Mexico in the past 100 years. Based on this study, he will develop teaching aids for lower division college students and interested laymen. In a Faculty Short Course on Risk-Benefit Analysis, the issues involved in determining the acceptability of risk were presented. The course covered three broad categories: (1) technical and economic factors relevant to the determination of risks and benefits and their distribution; (2) psychological and social considerations which influence the perception of risks and benefits and the social values underlying public risk taking; and (3) the political and regulatory practices which have developed to make risk acceptability evaluations.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

In fiscal year 1979, 783 proposals were received and 105 grants were awarded. In fiscal year 1980, approximately 865 proposals and 139 awards were made. In fiscal year 1981, 965 proposals and 136 grants are anticipated.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

Funding has continued for further planning and development of "3-2-1 Contact", a major new children's television series about science. The series began daily half-hour broadcasts over public television stations in January 1980 and is expected to reach a significant portion of the 8-12-year old U.S. children. The series is based on research into the preferences, knowledge, and understanding of some 7,000 pupils throughout the U.S. The program seeks to help children experience the joy of scientific exploration as well as to motivate them to pursue an interest in science. To encourage more and better coverage of science by the daily and weekly press, a program has supported a number of projects designed to provide scientific background information to journalists and editors. For example, a professional society conducted a briefing on new developments in mental health research for newspaper and magazine personnel. The briefings resulted in cover stories in two widely circulated publications as well as many newspaper articles throughout the country. Several projects to explore ethical issues in research on human subjects are being supported. A group at one university is conducting a study of the ethical problems encountered in the course of field work in the social sciences, particularly anthropology. In a related context, another group sponsored a conference to examine approaches to resolving the ethical dilemmas found in biomedical research projects involving human subjects. An organization conducted a workshop to explore the ethical issues associated with the determination of priorities for research on human reproduction. Forums, conferences, workshops, and planning studies have resulted in the contribution of scientific and technical understanding to the constructive analysis and discussion of important local and regional policy issues in a wide range of communities and on a diversity of topics. These include, for example, forestry management in Indiana, North Dakota, and Oregon; water and sewage management in Illinois and Washington; land-use planning in New York; and alternative energy development in California, Hawaii, Maine, and New Hampshire.

47.048 SCIENCE EDUCATION DEVELOPMENT AND RESEARCH AND RESOURCES IMPROVEMENT

OBJECTIVES:

To improve capabilities of academic institutions for education and research training by: improving science instruction at the elementary and secondary school levels; developing curricula and modes of instruction that will improve the teaching capabilities of undergraduate students who expect to become precollege science teachers; providing support for science education improvement to four-year colleges, two-year colleges, and undergraduate components of universities--fostering the flow into the sciences of talented persons from underrepresented ethnic minority groups and from low income families; strengthening programs of training and research for young scientists at the graduate and postgraduate levels; stimulating the incorporation of new knowledge and instructional strategies into college and university courses through local restructuring of science offerings, and the use of instructional scientific equipment. To provide a continuing flow of highly-trained scientists and engineers and to provide information in the sciences and technology to students pursuing careers in other areas by: designing, developing, and evaluating instructional materials, courses and curricula that will attract an adequate number of promising students to careers in the sciences and engineering; encouraging the design, testing and evaluation of curricular programs in science and technology that will assist students in understanding social and technological issues and in using science and technology in their everyday lives; improving the effectiveness of continuing education for practicing scientists and engineers; developing and testing new formats for instructional materials and new delivery modes that will make possible individualized science instruction without increasing instructional costs; and decreasing the time lag between the discovery of new knowledge and the inclusion of this knowledge in science education programs.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

(Project Grants) FY 79 $40,620,115; FY 80 est $38,950,000; and FY 81 est $36,100,000.

In fiscal year 1979, 2,779 proposals were received and 676 awards were made. In fiscal year 1980, 2,770 proposals were received and 685 grants were made. In fiscal year 1981, approximately 2,880 proposals and 687 grants are anticipated.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

A Resource Center for Science and Engineering was funded in the Southwest to increase both science awareness and the number of scientists and engineers among the Hispanic, Native American, and other communities in the Southwest region. Two universities are joined by 15 educational institutions and two research laboratories. Activities within the Southwest Resource Center include student and faculty internships, student and faculty research projects, minority recruitment efforts, teacher/counselor workshops, traveling demonstrations, science fairs, educational television programs, and tutorial services. An Academy of Sciences, Arts, and Letters, working with state science supervisors and university personnel, is conducting regional conferences in Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. The conferences will acquaint secondary school leaders with recently formulated ideas about intellectual development and their implications for helping students to develop reasoning ability while learning science. Six small public and private liberal arts colleges in North Dakota are integrating computer learning modules into freshman and sophomore-level science courses. Seventy-two science faculty members in ten major science areas are involved in this effort. There is considerable evidence that basic skills in mathematics among U.S. students have steadily improved over the past 30 years but that more complex problem solving skills have declined in the past ten to fifteen years. Research on ways to improve performance on problem-solving tasks is continuing at a number of sites at several universities.

COMMUNITY SERVICES ADMINISTRATION

49.005 COMMUNITY FOOD AND NUTRITION

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS:

Funds may be used in a variety of ways to supplement, extend and broaden other food programs (whether federally funded or supported by State or local public or private resources) and to provide, on an emergency basis, foodstuffs to low income families/individuals in order to counteract conditions of starvation and malnutrition. Projects should be catalytic, i.e., stimulate the delivery of services through other institutions and organizations. They should include advocacy as an essential and integral element, i.e., assure that the views of the poor are heard, their rights are observed, the benefits to which they are entitled are provided, and, to the extent possible, their needs are met. In addition each project must achieve three or more of the general purposes of the Economic Opportunity Act: 1) strengthen community capabilities for planning, 2) improve service delivery, 3) assure the maximum feasible participation of the poor in the planning and implementation of projects, 4) mobilize a broad range of federal, state and local, public and private resources, 5) employ innovative approaches in attacking the causes of poverty and (6) hire the poor where possible, in carrying out project activities. Five categories of projects may be funded: 1) Access. Projects which improve the opportunities for low-income people to gain access to, and participate in, federal and non-federal food and nutrition programs such as the Food Stamp Program, School Breakfast and School Lunch Programs, the Day Care Food Program, Women and infant Children (WIC) etc. 2) Self-help. Projects which improve the ability of low-income people to produce and purchase foodstuffs in a manner that fosters self-sufficiency. 3) Nutrition & Consumer Education. Projects which seek to improve the ability of low-income people to understand the connection between diet and health, to obtain at the lowest prices nutritionally superior foods and to prepare and preserve those foods in ways that minimize the loss of nutrients. 4) Crisis Relief. Projects which improve a community's capacity to provide foodstuffs, on an emergency basis, to low income families and individuals in need of such assistance. (5) Food Supply. Activities aimed at involving the private sector, especially those segments having to do with food production, processing and distribution, in helping to solve the nutritional problems of the poor. Grants are made on a one-time basis generally for a period of one year. No matching funds are required. However, funding preference is given to applicants who propose to mobilize other significant resources. JOINT FUNDING: This program is considered suitable for joint funding with closely related Federal financial assistance programs in accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-111. For programs that are not identified as suitable for joint funding, the applicant may consult the headquarters or field office of the appropriate funding agency for further information on statutory or other restrictions involved.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Application Procedure:

Eligible applicants must prepare applications in accordance with 45 CFR 1061.50. Applicable forms, application procedures, where to submit applications, deadlines for submission and review procedures are listed and described in the revision to 45 CFR Part 1061 published in the Federal Register May 20, 1980. This program is subject to the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-110.

Deadlines:

Applications for General Community, Special Support and Indian and Migrant projects must be submitted prior July 7. Applications for headquarters and regional training and technical assistance projects must be submitted prior to September 30.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS:

Grants are awarded on a competitive basis. Applications are reviewed, rated and ranked on the basis of the criteria listed in appendices B-F of 45 CFR 1061.50 and funding preference is given to applicants with the highest scores. The rating criteria include: (1) the extent and quality of the involvement of the poor in the planning, implementation and evaluation of the project, (2) the completeness end accuracy of the analysis of needs, (3) the adequacy of the work program and budget, (4) the anticipated impact of the project, (5) coordination with other appropriate agencies and organizations, (6) the catalytic effect of the project in bringing about needed institutional changes and mobilization of resources, and (7) the ability of the applicant to perform. Among applicants for General Community funds (as opposed to T&TA, Special Support, and Indian and Migrant applicants), perference is given to Community Action Agencies.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS:

AGNET -- The Commission is instrumental in extension of a revolutionary farm management program throughout the Region, and soon perhaps into many other agricultural States covered by Title V Commissions. AGNET, a computer-based system contains nearly 150 decision models permitting farmers and ranchers to make informed management judgments on all phases of their operations. Thousands of Old West farmers and ranchers now consult the computer for guidance on feeding, marketing, irrigating, budgeting, planting and all their other operations. SOIL SURVEYS -- In cooperation with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, the Commission is accelerating the pace of soil surveys throughout the Old West, reducing by approximately five years the long lead time anticipated before all areas of the region will have been subjected to accurate surveys. SCRUBBER WASTE GYPSUM -Another successful demonstration project by the Commission is its adaptation of scrubber waste gypsum as a soil amendment for sodic soils. Field-tested, the process of using the gypsum is now being adapted by agricultural experts throughout the country. ASPEN CHIPS -- A similar demonstration may lead to commercial development of ground aspen trees as a livestock feed. Parts of the Old West are plagued with aspen saplings which inhibit healthy forestation. The demonstration, which sought to make cleaning out of the aspens a commercially feasible project, proved that cattle thrive on aspen supplements in their regular feeding rations. Further studies developed the cost and marketability of the process. ERIS -- In an effort to provide order and eliminate duplication in western energy research and development, the Commission conducts an Energy Research Information System, a computer-based locater system which includes all known energy-related research and development carried on in western States by public and private organizations. CENTER FOR INNOVATION (CPI): The Commission has provided startup funding for this nonprofit organization dedicated to helping innovators and inventors get their products or developments into commercial production. To date, CFI has generated some $75 million in new income and 150 new jobs in the Old West. It is being viewed by the U.S. Senate as a prototype for similar organizations throughout the nation.

83.103 STATE ASSISTANCE—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

OBJECTIVES: To facilitate each State's achievement of a level of expertise in the National Insurance Program (NFIP) and in flood hazard mitigation which will enable the State to provide assistance to its constituent communities in discharging local responsibilities under the NFIP.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE: Project Grants (Cooperative Agreement).

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS: The State Assistance Program is designed for all States which submit acceptable applications regardless of their present level of involvement or degree of expertise in NFIP and flood hazard mitigation activities. It is structured to recognize the fact that States have individual needs and different levels of sophistication in dealing with the NFIP. Thus, the State Assistance Program allows each State the flexibility necessary to develop its application to accommodate the unique characteristics of the State and its communities, and allows each State to undertake an appropriate level of effort. The State Assistance Program has been designed around three Program Elements: Assessment, General Assistance and Public Information, and Community Services. The Program Elements are structured in order of increased levels of capability needed to accomplish their tasks. The State shall choose objectives and tasks from the Program Elements that are consistent with its demonstrated capability and develop a project designed to provide a foundation upon which to progress towards Program Elements requiring higher capabilities. Accomplishing the objectives of Program Elements requiring less capability is prerequisite for choosing elements requiring higher capability. All projects under the State Assistance Program for the NFIP should be oriented toward State and local activities. They should in no way analyze or recommend changes to the NFIP or its products. Specifically, no funds should be spent to evaluate the hydrology or hydraulics of any Flood Insurance Study. Public works, facilities and site or other improvements are generally ineligible to be acquired, constructed, reconstructed, rehabilitated or installed. The purchase of equipment is generally ineligible. The Federal Insurance Administrator has established a discretionary fund for innovative projects under the State Assistance Program. Each State's application for the target amount of funding may contain a supplement proposing innovative tasks to be funded from the Administrator's Discretionary Fund.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS: In fiscal year 1980, the program was administered at the National Science Foundation as a Pre-College Teacher Development in Science Program for teachers of grades K through 12. In that proposal competition, 649 proposals were received at the Foundation and 312 were awarded grants. The projects that were supported offered continuing education for approximately 15,458 elementary and secondary school teachers. Eighty-seven of these funded projects involved elementary school teachers of kindergarten through grade four. In fiscal year 1981, the elementary school portion of the Pre-College Teacher Development in Science Program was transferred to the Department of Education. Approximately 200 proposals and 80 awards are anticipated for this program in fiscal year 1981.

REGULATIONS, GUIDELINES, AND LITERATURE: The regulations were published in 1980 as Part 797 in the Federal Register; FY 1981 Guide for Preparation of Proposals, Pre-College Teacher Development in Science Program; ED 80-42001, was published in August 1980 (no charge).

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS: A three week summer workshop for 40 elementary and middle school teachers will be offered by the biology, geology and history departments at a university. The goals are (1) to acquaint the teachers with the diversity of the flora and fauna in the region and integrate this with its geology and cultural history, (2) to provide the teachers with a pool of resources available within the area, (3) to assist participants with the development of instructional material useful in the classroom, and (4) to create an atmosphere of continued cooperation between the workshop participants and the workshop faculty. Coursework will include a series of three field trips, each to a different geographic sector of the region. Two drive-in seminars will be held during the academic year to reinforce that relationship and further widen the scope of the resources available to these teachers. Visits to the participant's schools by the faculty will provide cooperation to many teachers and students in that school system. Courses in geology will be offered at a west coast university during the academic year focusing upon earthquake education. Seventy teachers of kindergarten through grade six from the area will participate. Earthquakes are a significant part of everyday life in this area and the project will utilize earthquake awareness as a means of developing insights into the fundamental tenets of science. The elementary school teachers will be assisted in the development and implementation of an interdisciplinary science curriculm applicable to their school's academic needs.

The standard nomination forms with instructions will be provided to the designated faculty representatives of all such institutions whose presidents or chancellors inform the Foundation of their intent to participate.

Application Procedure: The faculty representative of an institution is the key person in the Truman Scholarship selection process and serves as liaison between her or his institution and the Foundation. The faculty representative is responsible for publicizing the Truman Scholarship on campus, soliciting recommendations on students with significant potential for leadership in government from members of the faculty, conducting a competition on campus in order to determine the candidates best qualified to be nominated by the institution, and insuring that the institution's official nomination or nominations are forwarded to the Truman Scholarship Review Committee by the stated deadline. The following information, on the official nominating materials, must be included with each Scholarship nomination: 1. The nomination and supporting information for the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Program must include a certification that the student is a candidate for a Truman Scholarship; a statement that the student plans to pursue a career in public service; a list of the student's public service activities such as those associated with government agencies, community groups, and political campaigns; a list of leadership positions the student has held during high school and during the first two years of undergraduate study; a statement of interest in a career in public service that specifies how the student's educational plans will provide preparation for that career; and a statement that the student is willing to participate in an internship or seminar sponsored by the Foundation. 2. It must also contain an essay of 600 words or less written by the student that discusses some public policy issue chosen by the student; transcripts of the student's high school and college grades; and three letters of recommendation. One of the letters must be written by a faculty member in the student's field of study, one by another person who can discuss the student's potential for a career in public service, and the third letter may be from any person of the nominee's choosing.

Award Procedure: 1. Initial evaluation: Student nominated for consideration as Harry S. Truman Scholars will be evaluated on the basis of: a. the extent to which the student has shown an outstanding potential for leadership in public service, and b. the student's academic performance. 2. Interviews: Semifinalist selected as a result of the initial evaluation of the credentials of all nominees are interviewed by Regional Review Panels, composed primarily of prominent scholars and public officials. Each Regional Review Panel will recommend two persons from each State or district in rank order for selection as Truman Scholars, plus up to four additional persons in rank order for two Scholarships at large from each region. Because only students with superior academic records are selected as semifinalists, the Regional Review Panels will concentrate their evaluation on the nominees' demonstrated interest in the public service and their relative potential for leadership in government. Among the characteristics they will assess in making this judgment are the following: analytic ability, communication skills, independence, initiative, integrity, self-confidence, sensitivity to others, ability to explain with clarity a complex situation, a demonstrated interest in public service, and a commitment to future public service. 3. Final Selection: From among the candidates recommended by the Regional Review Panels, the Board of Trustees will name up to 79 winners of Harry S. Truman Scholarships. Other finalists may be named as official alternates and will be eligible to receive that year's Scholarship if the winner originally named from the same State or district is not able to begin studies as a Truman Scholar.

Deadlines: December 1, each year, for faculty representatives to file nominations for Scholarships.

Range of Approval/Disapproval Time: 1. January, each year - Scholarship nominees are evaluated and semifinalists selected. 2. February-March, each year - Truman Scholarship semifinalists are interviewed. 3. April, each year - The Truman Scholars and alternates are selected by the Board of Trustees of the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation.

Appeals: None.

Renewals: 1. It is the intent of the Foundation to renew Scholarship awards for the senior year and for a period not to exceed two academic years of graduate study, in accordance with the regulations established by its Board of Trustees, and subject to an annual review for compliance with these requirements. 2. The Foundation may terminate a Scholarship: a. when a student has not maintained, for two consecutive academic terms, satisfactory proficiency, or b. when the student is no longer enrolled in a program preparing for public service as specified by the Foundation. 3. A Scholar may seek postponement of her or his award because of ill health or other mitigating circumstances, upon application to the Executive Secretary.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements: Not applicable.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance: To be eligible to receive payments, a Truman Scholar must submit in writing: 1. an acceptance of the Scholarship award, and 2. at the beginning of each academic term, a statement of eligible expenses certified by the authorized financial officer of the enrolling institution, including those of tuition, fees, books, and room and board, an additional certification regarding the Scholar's academic program, and other certifications as required by law or regulation. The number of payments to be made via Treasury check during the academic year will correspond to the number of semesters, trimesters, or quarters in the institution's academic year, but will not be less than two.

Appendix I: Programs Requiring Circular Coordination

This appendix lists programs requiring Circular coordination. The Circulars represented are OMB Circular No. A-95 revised, Attachment A, Parts I and III; Federal Management Circular 74-4; OMB Circular No. A-102; Environmental Impact Statement; Treasury Circular 1082; OMB Circular No. A-110; and OMB Circular No. A-111.

A-95, Attachment A, Part I

Applicants for assistance under the following programs are required to notify both the appropriate State and areawide clearinghouses of their intent to apply and to provide them with an opportunity to review completed applications.

For detailed information on requirements which must be met before applying, refer to the Preapplication Coordination section of each program description. This list of Circular No. A-95, Part I programs takes precedence over all previously published lists; provided that any program previously covered but not listed herein because it is not presently funded or operative which becomes funded or operative is again covered by Part I, unless specifically exempted by OMB.

A-95, Attachment A, Part III

State agencies applying for funds under the following programs are required to give the Governor of the State (or the State agency the Governor has designated to review State Plans) an opportunity to review the State Plan required as a condition of funding under such programs.

For detailed information on requirements which must be met before applying, refer to the Credentials/Documentation section of each program description.

FMC 74-4

Federal Management Circular (FMC) 74-4 establishes principles and standards for determining costs applicable to grants and contracts with State and local governments. They are designed to provide the basis for a uniform approach to the problem of determining costs and to promote efficiency and better relationships between grantees and the Federal Government.

When State and local governments are recipients, the following programs listed in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance are subject to the provision of FMC 74-4, except where restricted or prohibited by law.

Included also in the list are programs falling under the purview of FMC 74-4 because the Federal grantor agencies have elected to use the FMC 74-4 standards for recipients and programs not otherwise covered by the circular.

A-102

OMB Circular No. A-102, establishes uniform administrative standards for the administration of grants and contracts to State and local governments.

When State and local governments are recipients, the following programs listed in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance are subject to the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-102.

Included also in the list are programs falling under the purview of OMB Circular No. A-102 because the Federal grantor agencies have elected to use the OMB Circular No. A-102 standards for recipients and programs not otherwise covered by the circular.

Environmental Impact Statement

Specific programs listed in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance have been determined to have a significant effect on the environment and require an environmental assessment or an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) under Section 102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (Public Law 90-190; 42 U.S.C. 4332(2)(C), and Executive Order 11514 (34 FR 4247) of March 4, 1970. (Significant effects include actions that may have both beneficial and detrimental effects.)

In the early stages of project application, and in all cases prior to agency decisions concerning major action, the applicant should be advised by the Federal agency from which assistance is being sought that he will be required to submit environmental impact information (to be submitted under agency guidelines) in connection with the proposed project for an environmental assessment (to be made by the Federal agency), or an Environmental Impact Statement (to be supplied by the Federal agency) concerning the proposed project.

Although the list below is not inclusive, it contains programs normally requiring either an environmental assessment or an Environmental Impact Statement.

For EIS coordination requirements, refer to the Preapplication Coordination section of each program description.

Treasury Circular 1082

The Intergovernmental Cooperation Act of 1968 requires Federal agencies to notify the Governors, State legislatures, or their designated representatives of the purpose and amount of grants awarded to units of State/local government. Central reception points (State Central Information Reception Agencies) have been designated by the States for receiving and disseminating this information. Administrative procedures are defined in Department of the Treasury Circular No. 1082.

Notification is required on all grants to units of State/local government except those specifically exempted by the Act. The list below covers most grants to units of State/local government which fall within the purview of the Circular. Not included may be some programs where non-governmental organizations are primary recipients but occasional grants are awarded to State/local government. In these instances, notification is required.

For detailed information on the award process, refer to the Award Procedure section of each program description.

Programs in this appendix having a single asterisk (*) at the end of the title are Basic Reporting Programs. Programs having double asterisks () denote Basic as well as Supplemental Reporting.

A-110

OMB Circular No. A-110 sets forth administrative requirements for the administration of grants and other agreements to include money or property in lieu of money; does not include technical assistance programs providing services, loans, loan guarantees, insurance, or direct payments to individuals. Reference to this circular appears in the Application Procedure section of programs that apply.

Applicants are public and private institutions of higher education, hospitals, and other quasi-public and private nonprofit organizations.

A-111

OMB Circular No. A-111 establishes policies and procedures to be followed in the joint funding of related programs of Federal assistance pursuant to the Joint Funding Simplification Act of 1974. Under one application, applicants may apply for resources available from more than one Federal agency, program, or appropriation, including assistance from State sources. Programs identified as suitable for joint funding are identified in the Uses and Use Restrictions section of the programs. For programs that are not identified as suitable for joint funding, the applicant may consult the headquarters or field office of the appropriate agency for further information on statutory or other restrictions involved.

Applicants are State and local governments, Indian tribal bodies and private nonprofit organizations acting separately or jointly in seeking assistance with respect to a single project.

Appendix V: Sources of Additional Information Contacts

Additional information concerning Federal programs and services is available from the sources listed below. The information in this Appendix is in addition to that supplied in Appendix IV (Regional and Local Office addresses), but are not the offices to which an applicant applies for an assistance program. If a potential applicant or information seeker is not certain which agency to contact, there are three types of organizations ready to help: The Federal Information Centers, the Federal Regional Councils, and the Federal Executive Boards.

FEDERAL INFORMATION CENTERS

Federal Information Centers (FIC) are a focal point for information about the Federal Government. Centers assist people who have questions about Federal services, programs, and regulations, but do not know where to turn for an answer. FIC information specialists either answer an inquirer's questions directly, or perform the necessary research to locate and refer the inquirer to the expert best able to help. There are currently 41 FIC's with an additional 43 cities connected to the nearest Center by telephone tieline. Five States offer statewide toll-free '800' service to State residents. The FIC addresses and telephone numbers are listed below.

Catalog Highlights

In previous Catalog update supplements, the Modifications to Program Descriptions section has contained in it the update terms Substitute, Delete, and Add among others. These terms directed the user to make the necessary changes to the basic Catalog. These update terms do not appear in the 1980 supplements. All sections of the program descriptions shown in this update supplement under Modifications replace those same sections found in the basic Catalog.

Also, under Modifications to Program Descriptions, you will find that programs are shown with their program titles. This means program titles (and numbers) that have been changed since the basic Catalog will have to be tracked using the Crosswalk of Changes to Program Numbers and Titles. It will be extremely important for the user to utilize the Crosswalk section of the update supplement.

A user feedback form is provided for suggestions and comments on Catalog improvement. The reverse side of the form becomes a franked, pre-addressed envelope when correctly folded.

The 1980 Catalog contains 1,176 programs administered by 60 Federal agencies.

Updating Instructions to the 1980 Catalog

INTRODUCTION This material contains looseleaf update pages for the 1980 Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance which was previously sent to you. This Second Update to the 1980 Catalog adds some new programs, deletes other programs, and modifies a majority of the descriptions to reflect substantive changes. Revised indexes and appendices are also included.

SUGGESTIONS It is suggested that this package be retained as a total change reference package in the for handling front or back of the Catalog. (This is not an effort to re-do the entire Catalog.)

The parts of the Second Update to the 1980 Catalog that supersede the basic May 1980 material are the Highlights, Introduction and How to Use the Catalog, Agency Program Index, Applicant Eligibility Index, Deadlines Index, Functional Index Summary, Functional Index, Popular Name Index, Subject Index, Deleted Programs, Added Programs, Crosswalk of Changes to Program Numbers and Titles, Programs Requiring Circular Coordination (Appendix I), Authorization Appendix (Appendix II), Commonly Used Abbreviations and Acronymns (Appendix III), Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses (Appendix IV), and Sources of Additional Information Contacts (Appendix V).

The Summary List of Modified Programs lists those programs from the basic May 1980 Catalog that have undergone a substantive change. The actual changes are listed under Modifications to Program Descriptions. It is suggested that this list as well as the modified programs portion be kept intact with the other parts of the Second Update in the front or back of the Catalog.

Pages in this Second Update are arranged basically in the same order as the 1980 Catalog. (All new pages are dated 12-80.)

INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to the Federal Program Information Act, Public Law 95-220, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) disseminates information on Federal domestic assistance programs through the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, and the Federal Assistance Programs Retrieval System (FAPRS). The Office of Management and Budget maintains a Federal assistance information data base from which program information is obtained.

The Catalog provides the user with access to programs of Federal departments and agencies in a single publication. Program information is cross-referenced by functional classification, subject, eligible applicants, popular name, authorizing legislation, and Federal circular requirements. Other sections of the Catalog provide users with information on the administrative requirements of Federal circulars, definitions of the types of assistance under which programs are administered, proposal writing, grant application procedures, and additional sources of information on Federal programs and services. Also included is a chart on how to use the Catalog to locate programs of interest, and a chart describing the A-95 clearinghouse Project Notification and Review System (PNRS) along with the prescribed application procedures under which programs must be reviewed.

The Office of Management and Budget distributes free copies of the Catalog to National, State and local offices. At the national level copies are provided to: Members of Congress, congressional staff, and Federal offices of the U.S. Government. At the State level copies of the Catalog are provided to: Governors, State Coordinators of Federal-State Relations, Directors of State Departments of Administration and Budget Offices, Directors of State Departments of Community Affairs, Directors of State Planning Agencies, State clearinghouses, State Central Information Reception Agencies, Directors of State Agricultural Extension Services, State Municipal Leagues, State Association of Counties, Chief State School Officers, and State Employment Security Agencies. At the local level copies are provided to: Mayors, County Chairmen, Chairmen of Boards of Commissioners and city planners. Copies are also provided to the Federal Information Centers, Federal Regional Councils, Federal Executive Boards, and appropriate field and area offices of most Federal agencies. The Catalog is also provided to other agencies of State and local govenments down to and including those with a population size of 250. Private individuals who wish to receive a copy of the Catalog must contact the Government Printing Office, Superintendent of Documents, Washington, DC 20402. (See back cover of Catalog for subscription form.)

Program information from the Catalog is also available on machine readable magnetic tape, microfiche, and paper copy. These sources contain all textual material published in the program description section of the Catalog. The magnetic tape contains a characteristics record of coded program information extracted from the textual material. The characteristics record format allows the user to retrieve program numbers and titles, along with the program function, types of assistance, applicants, beneficiaries, circular requirements, obligations, matching requirements, geographic data, and authorizing legislation. From the text record of the tape, users may retrieve the complete text or specific sections of the program. The documentation accompanying the magnetic tape describes the procedures for retrieving program information in various formats. The tape, microfiche or paper copy may be purchased from the Department of Commerce, National Technical Information Service, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, Virginia 22151.

THE FEDERAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS RETRIEVAL SYSTEM (ENHANCED VERSION)

The Federal Assistance Programs Retrieval System (FAPRS) is a computerized question-answer system which is designed to provide rapid access to Federal domestic assistance program information. The system provides information on Federal programs which meet the developmental needs of the applicant and for which the applicant meets basic eligibility criteria. Program information provided by FAPRS is determined from input supplied by the requestor. Input required includes the name of the State, county, city, town, or federally designated Indian Tribe for which program information is requested; the population of the city or town; the type of applicant (e.g., State or local governments, federally designated Indian tribal governments, nonprofit organizations, small businesses, individuals), the type of assistance under which programs are administered (e.g., grants, loans); and the specific functional categories and subcategories of interest. Based upon the input supplied by the requestor, the output provided by FAPRS consists of 1) a list of program numbers and titles, 2) the full text of selected programs, or 3) specific sections of the program text. FAPRS also offers the user the opportunity to comment on the system and the information provided.

As originally developed, FAPRS was designed to aid small, rural, isolated communities unfamiliar with Federal assistance programs or unable to locate Federal aid programs that had the greatest funding potential. FAPRS is now being accessed by both rural and urban areas. An enhanced version of FAPRS has been developed based on the requirements developed from an analysis of FAPRS users and an OMB study of the overall requirements for Federal information systems. The following features have been incorporated into the new FAPRS system:

1. Expansion of functional categories and subcategories. As listed in the Functional Index of the Catalog, the enhanced version of FAPRS uses 20 functional categories and 176 subcategories to specify an area of interest.
2. Expansion of the applicant eligibility specification to include 12 government related and 10 non-government related applicant types.
3. Specification of the type(s) of assistance desired as one of the search criteria. At present, the Catalog lists up to 15 types of assistance provided by Federal programs.
4. Display of definitions for functional subcategories, applicant types, and types of assistance.
5. Selection of specific sections of Catalog text to be displayed.
6. Formatted display of Federal circular coordination requirements for a selected list of programs.

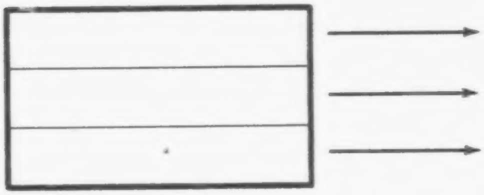
States have designated access points where FAPRS searches may be requested. In addition, bulletins on FAPRS are available from the system to inform users of the addition or deletion of programs, changes to program numbers from one edition of the Catalog to the next, and enhancements and changes to the system. For further information on FAPRS, the location of the nearest State access point, or a list of the timesharing companies from which interested persons may arrange for direct access to the system, write to the Office of Management and Budget, Budget Review Division, Federal Program Information Branch, Washington, D.C. 20503.

How To Use the Catalog

The application procedures information in the following section is general in nature and may vary depending upon the type of applicant, type of assistance offered under a program, or the nature of the particular program or project. Potential applicants are urged to carefully review the requirements indicated in each program, since evaluation of applications are based upon the degree to which program requirements have been met.

The following page contains a chart which suggests how to use the Catalog. By following the steps outlined in each block, the user will have extracted all of the Catalog data pertaining to a Federal assistance program. For matters too complex, or those which frequently change, potential applicants are encouraged to obtain this information from the Federal agency contact listed in the Information Contacts section of the program descriptions. The Federal agency contact will also supply detailed information and specific guidance on applying for Federal assistance.

Each block in the chart is divided into three sections:



Describes the type of action to take.

Identifies the appropriate Catalog section for reference.

Details the important aspects to consider and note.

Using the Chart

Users should start at the top of the chart with the blocks indicating LOCATE PROGRAM. Use one or more of these blocks depending upon the type of information you have regarding your Federal assistance interests. Move down the chart collecting and noting information as you proceed until you reach the block indicating APPLICATION SUBMISSION. Once you have identified the Federal program you believe fits your objective or proposal, you may process your application. Information on proposal writing and grant procedures are outlined in the Introduction.

Types of Assistance

Currently, programs in the Catalog are being classified by OMB into 15 types of assistance. Benefits and services of the programs are provided through seven financial types of assistance and eight nonfinancial types of assistance. The following list defines the types of assistance which are available through the programs. Code letters below (A through O) which identify the type of assistance) will follow program titles in the Agency Index, Applicant Eligibility Index, the Functional Index, Deadlines Index, and in the list of added programs.

A Formula Grants — Allocations of money to States or their subdivision in accordance with a distribution formula prescribed by law or administrative regulation, for activities of a continuing nature not confined to a specific project.

B Project Grants — The funding, for fixed or known periods, of specific projects or the delivery of specific services or products without liability for damages for failure to perform. Project grants include fellowships, scholarships, research grants, training grants, traineeships, experimental and demonstration grants, evaluation grants, planning grants, technical assistance grants, survey grants, construction grants, and unsolicited contractual agreements.

C Direct Payments for Specified Use — Financial assistance from the Federal Government provided directly to individuals, private firms, and other private institutions to encourage or subsidize a particular activity by conditioning the receipt of the assistance on a particular performance by the recipient. This does not include solicited contracts for the procurement of goods and services for the Federal Government.

D Direct Payments with Unrestricted Use — Financial assistance from the Federal Government provided directly to beneficiaries who satisfy Federal eligibility requirements with no restrictions being imposed on the recipient as to how the money is spent. Included are payments under retirement, pension, and compensation programs.

E Direct Loans — Financial assistance provided through the lending of Federal monies for a specific period of time, with a reasonable expectation of repayment. Such loans may or may not require the payment of interest.

F Guaranteed/Insured Loans — Programs in which the Federal Government makes an arrangement to indemnify a lender against part or all of any defaults by those responsible for repayment of loans.

G Insurance — Financial assistance provided to assure reimbursement for losses sustained under specified conditions. Coverage may be provided directly by the Federal Government or through private carriers and may or may not involve the payment of premiums.

H Sale, Exchange, or Donation of Property and Goods — Programs which provide for the sale, exchange, or donation of Federal real property, personal property, commodities, and other goods including land, buildings, equipment, food and drugs. This does not include the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property.

I Use of Property, Facilities, and Equipment — Programs which provide for the loan of, use of, or access to Federal facilities or property wherein the federally owned facilities or property do not remain in the possession of the recipient of the assistance.

J Provision of Specialized Services — Programs which provide Federal personnel to directly perform certain tasks for the benefit of communities or individuals. These services may be performed in conjunction with nonfederal personnel, but they involve more than consultation, advice, or counseling.

K	Advisory Services and Counseling — Programs which provide Federal specialists to consult, advise, or counsel communities or individuals including conferences, workshops, or personal contacts. This may involve the use of published information, but only in a secondary capacity.
L	Dissemination of Technical Information — Programs which provide for the publication and distribution of information or data of a specialized technical nature frequently through clearinghouses or libraries. This does not include conventional public information services designed for general public consumption.
M	Training — Programs which provide instructional activities conducted directly by a Federal agency for individuals not employed by the Federal Government.
N	Investigation of Complaints — Federal administrative agency activities that are initiated in response to requests, either formal or informal, to examine or investigate claims of violations of Federal statutes, policy, or procedure. The origination of such claims must come from outside the Federal Government.
O	Federal Employment — Programs which reflect the Government-wide responsibilities of the Office of Personnel Management in the recruitment and hiring of Federal civilian agency personnel.

THE CATALOG OF FEDERAL DOMESTIC ASSISTANCE

The Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance is a Government-wide compendium of Federal programs, projects, services, and activities which provide assistance or benefits to the American public. It contains over 1,100 financial and nonfinancial assistance programs administered by departments and establishments of the Federal Government.

As the basic reference source of Federal programs, the primary purpose of the Catalog is to assist users in identifying programs which meet specific objectives of the potential applicant, and to obtain general information on Federal assistance programs. In addition, the intent of the Catalog is to improve coordination and communication between the Federal Government and State and local governments.

The Catalog is published annually, using the most current data available on the status of programs at the time the Catalog or updates to the Catalog are compiled. The basic edition of the Catalog, which is usually published in May, reflects completed congressional action on program legislation. The updates reflect completed congressional action on the President's budget proposals and on substantive legislation as of the date of compilation, and include information on Federal programs that was not available at the time the latest edition of the Catalog was compiled. The first update to the Catalog is published the middle of September, and the second update is published the middle of December. The most recent update to the Catalog must be retained and used along with the basic edition in order to obtain the most current information on program revisions.

Programs selected for inclusion in the Federal assistance data base are defined as any activity, service, project or process of a Federal agency, commission, council, administration, Government-owned corporation, or any instrumentality of the Federal Government which provides assistance or benefits to the American public. The term 'assistance' refers to the transfer of money, property, services, or anything of value, the principal purpose of which is to accomplish a public purpose of support or stimulation authorized by Federal statute. Programs are identified in terms of the authorizing statute, budget authority to enter into obligations resulting in outlays of Federal funds, the administering office, the purpose, benefits and beneficiaries of a program.

Contents Of the Catalog

The Catalog contains Federal domestic assistance programs available to: State and local governments (including the District of Columbia and federally recognized Indian tribal governments); territories (and possessions) of the United States; domestic public, quasi-public, and private profit and nonprofit organizations and institutions; specialized groups; and individuals.

The Catalog does not include:

- Solicited contracts administered under procurement laws and regulations for the purchase of goods and services for the Federal Government;

- Foreign activities except as such programs have direct economic benefit in the domestic economy. (A program that provides both domestic and foreign assistance will be included with the description of the program oriented toward the domestic aspect.);

- Personnel recruitment programs of individual Federal departments which offer employment opportunities as part of normal recruiting operations, (the overall Government-wide programs of the Office of Personnel Management are included);

- Benefits or assistance available only to current employees of the Federal Government either civilian or military;

- New programs proposed in the Budget for which appropriations have not been enacted; and

- Programs which are no longer active due to expired authorization or appropriation.

Organization of the Catalog

The Catalog is divided into three basic sections —— the indices, the program descriptions, and the appendices.

INDICES—To locate specific programs of interest, determine eligibility, and to obtain information on the dates applications for assistance should be submitted to the funding agency, users may consult the Agency Program Index, the Functional Index, the Popular Name Index, or the Subject Index; the Applicant Eligibility Index, and the Index listing deadlines for program applications.

The Agency Program Index lists all programs in the Catalog in numerical order by the five-digit program identification number, the program title, the Federal agency responsible for administering the program, and whether the program offers financial assistance, nonfinancial assistance, or a combination of both.

The Functional Index Summary lists the basic functional categories and the subcategories which further identify specific areas of interest. Following the Summary is the Functional Index listing each program number and title under the appropriate basic category and subcategory.

The Popular Name Index is a two part index, alphabetic and numeric, which lists programs according to the name most commonly used by agencies or applicants when referring to a program, and is followed by the program number.

The Subject Index provides a detailed listing of programs by various topics, general functional terms, categories of services, and selected beneficiaries, and is followed by the applicable program numbers.

The Applicant Eligibility Index is a listing in program number sequence, along with program titles, indicating the applicants eligible to apply. The index lists programs which may be applied for by:

- any of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of a State exclusive of State institutions of higher education and hospitals;

- local governments which include a county, parish, municipality, city town, township, village, State-designated Indian tribal government, local public authority, school district, special district, intrastate district, council of governments, sponsor group representative organizations, and other regional or interstate government entity, or any agency or instrumentality of a local government;

- U.S. Territories (and possessions) of the United States which include the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and American Samoa;

- Federally recognized Indian Tribal Governments which includes the governing body or a governmental agency of any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community (including any Native village as defined in Section 3 of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, 85 Stat. 688) certified by the Secretary of the Interior as eligible for the special programs and services provided by him through the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

- nonprofit organizations and institutions which include quasi-public, public and private institutions of higher education and hospitals, Native American Indian Organizations, and other quasi-public and private nonprofit organizations such as, but not limited to, community action agencies (CAAs), Headstart agencies, research institutes, educational associations, and health centers. Excluded under this definition are Government-owned contractor operated facilities or research centers providing support for mission-oriented, large scale programs that are Government-owned or controlled, or are designed as federally funded research and development centers;

- private individuals such as homeowners, students, farmers artists, scientists, consumers, small business, refugees, aliens, veterans, senior citizens, low-income persons, health and education professionals, builders, contractors, developers, handicapped persons, the physically afflicted.

The Deadlines Index (for program applications) is a listing of program numbers and titles and the deadline date(s) by which funding agencies must receive applications. This information is also contained in the Deadlines Section of the program descriptions.

Users should also consult the following listings:

The Deleted Programs list which identifies programs that have been deleted since the previous edition of the Catalog due to: expiration of authorization or appropriation; programs incorporated into existing programs (which results in a deletion of program numbers rather than the program itself); termination of an agency; or the criteria for inclusion in the Catalog are no longer valid, (e.g., programs no longer operating with Federal funds).

The Added Programs list which identifies newly authorized and/or newly funded programs, programs that have been reinstated due to new authorization, or programs not previously submitted by a Federal agency. Also included on this list are programs that have been split from existing programs and assigned new program numbers (which results in an increase in the number of programs previously funded rather than newly funded programs).

The Crosswalk of Changes to Program Numbers and Titles which lists programs that have undergone a title change, or a program number change due to restructuring of programs, or reorganization of a Federal agency.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS——The center section of the Catalog contains descriptions of Federal programs listed by program number in the same numerical sequence as the Agency Program Index. Detailed information concerning programs are contained under the description headings of each Catalog program. The following is an explanation of each program description heading followed by examples of the type of information found under each heading.

NOTE: The program used in the example below does not exist. It is provided for the purpose of illustration only.

PROGRAM NUMBER, TITLE, AND POPULAR NAME — Each program in the Catalog is preceded by a five-digit program identification number. The first two digits identify the Federal department or agency that administers the program, and the last three numbers are assigned in numerical sequence. Thus, program number 10.500 is administered by the Department of Agriculture, 11.500 by the Department of Commerce, 12.500 by the Department of Defense, 13.500 by the Health, and Human Services, etc. The program title is the descriptive name given to a program. The popular name, which is less descriptive than the program title, is the name by which programs are commonly known or most often used by applicants and agencies.

Example: 13.259 MENTAL HEALTH—CHILDREN'S SERVICES

FEDERAL AGENCY — The Federal agency is the Federal department, agency, commission, council or instrumentality of the Government, and the primary organizational sub-unit (the administering office) that has direct operational responsibility for managing a program.

Example: ALCOHOL, DRUG ABUSE AND MENTAL HEALTH ADMINISTRATION, PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

AUTHORIZATION — This section lists the legal authority upon which a program is based (acts, amendments to acts, Public Law numbers, titles, sections, Statute Codes, citations to the U.S. Code, Executive Orders, Presidential Reorganization Plans, and Memorandum from an agency head).

Example: Community Mental Health Centers Amendments of 1975; Public Law 94-63; Part A, Section 203(e); U.S.C. 2689.

OBJECTIVES — This is a brief statement of specific objectives stated in terms of what the program is intended to accomplish along with the goals toward which the program is directed.

Example: To stimulate innovative approaches to children's mental health problems emphasizing prevention and coordination of community services; to expand training activities and broaden resources for children's mental health services.

TYPES OF ASSISTANCE — This section indicates the form in which the assistance is transmitted from the Federal Government and is initially received for use or distribution by the applicant.

Example: Project Grants.

USES AND USE RESTRICTIONS — This section describes the potential uses for the assistance provided to meet stated objectives, and the specific restrictions placed upon the use of funds. The section cites one or numerous applications depending upon the nature of a particular program, and whether the program is suitable for joint funding under OMB Circular No. A-111. Since this section translates objectives into the uses of a program, users may develop a clearer understanding of the program's objectives.

Example: Support for Continuation Grants only. Program authorizes funds on a matching basis for initial staffing of facilities offering mental health services for children. Staffing grants may be used for a portion of the costs of professional and technical personnel to operate a facility for child mental health services; a higher percentage may be paid if an area has been designated a poverty area by the Secretary, HHS. The proposed program must provide consultation and coordinating services with other community agencies serving children in service area, and must include a plan with the means by which it will be evaluated. JOINT FUNDING: This program is considered suitable for joint funding with closely related Federal financial assistance programs in accordance with the provisions of OMB Circular No. A-111. For programs that are not identified as suitable for joint funding, the applicant may consult the headquarters or field office of the appropriate funding agency for further information on statutory or other restriction involved.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS:

Applicant Eligibility — This section indicates who can apply to the Federal Government for assistance and the criteria the potential applicant must satisfy. For example, individuals may be eligible for research grants, and the criteria to be satisfied may be that they have a professional or scientific degree, three years of research experience, and be a citizen of the United States. Universities, medical schools, hospitals, or State and local governments may also be eligible. Where State governments are eligible, the type of State agency will be indicated (State welfare agency or State agency on aging) and the criteria that they must satisfy.

Certain programs in the Catalog (e.g., the Basic Educational Opportunity program which provides grants to students) involve intermediate levels of application processing, i.e., applications are transmitted through colleges or universities that are neither the direct applicant nor the ultimate beneficiary. For these programs, the criteria that the intermediaries must satisfy are also indicated, along with intermediaries who are not eligible.

Example: To be eligible for staffing grants, applicant must be part of, or affiliated with, a community mental health center, unless there is no center serving the community. Applicant may then be any public or private nonprofit agency providing, or coordinating with programs which will provide, a full range of mental health services for children and their families residing in the service area. Only support for continuation projects are currently available.

Beneficiary Eligibility — This section lists the ultimate beneficiaries of a program, the criteria they must satisfy and who specifically is not eligible. The applicant and beneficiary will generally be the same for programs that provide assistance directly from a Federal agency. However, financial assistance that pass through State or local governments will have different applicants and beneficiaries since the assistance is transmitted to private sector beneficiaries who are not obligated to request or apply for the assistance.

Example: Children and their families in the service area as well as personnel of schools and other community agencies serving children.

Credentials/Documentation — This is a brief description of the credentials or documentation required prior to, or along with, a request or application for assistance. Indicated are the eligibility factors that must be proved, certified, or established. This section also indicates Federal Management Circular 74-4 requirements (Cost Principles Applicable to Grants and Contracts with State and Local Governments) where applicable, State Plan requirements, and whether Governors (or their designated Plan review agencies) must be given an opportunity to review the State Plan pursuant to Attachment A, Part III of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

Example: Costs will be determined in accordance with HHS Regulation 45 CFR, Part 74, Subpart Q. Appendix C of that subpart, which applies to State and local governments, is based on FMC 74-4.

APPLICATION AND AWARD PROCESS:

Preapplication Coordination — This section indicates whether any prior coordination or approval is required with governmental or nongovernmental units prior to the submission of a formal application to the Federal funding agency. For example, programs may require 1) State agency approval prior to the submission of an application to a Federal agency, 2) preparation and submission of a State Plan under Part III of OMB Circular No. A-95, 3) coordination with State and areawide clearinghouses under Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95, 4) the submission of environmental impact information as required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, and Executive Order 11514 of March 4, 1970, 5) coordination with the policies of OMB Circular No. A-102, (Uniform Administrative Requirements for Grants-in-Aid to State and Local Governments), or 6) a preapplication or preapplication conference. Applicants should also ascertain from the Federal agency the existence of other circular requirements not indicated by this section, and from the State any State requirements which may be in effect. Example: Preapplication consultation with the ADAMHA Branch of the HHS Regional Office is not mandatory. Application must be accompanied by evidence of approval and recommendation by the appropriate State agency or agencies. The standard application forms as furnished by the Federal agency and required by OMB Circular No. A-102 must be used for this program. Applications are subject to State and areawide clearinghouses review pursuant to procedures in Attachment A, Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

Application Procedure — This section discusses the basic procedural steps required by the Federal agency in the application process, beginning with the lowest level (e.g., State and local government units, institutions or organizations) and ending eventually with the Federal Government. Each program will indicate whether applications are to be submitted to the Federal headquarters, regional or local office, or to a State or local government office. If a State Plan is required, this will be indicated again in this section since 'applications' under formula grant programs are in the form of a State Plan. Numerous programs in the Catalog require the standard application forms in OMB Circular No. A-102 (Attachment M), other applications may be in the form of a written request to the funding agency stating the need for assistance and requesting available services, or a formal proposal prepared in response to an announcement in the Federal Register or the Commerce Business Daily. (See information and guidance on application procedures under Appendix I below.) Also indicated in this section is whether OMB Circular No. A-110 (Grants and Agreements with Institutions of Higher Education, Hospitals, and Other Nonprofit Organizations) applies to the program.

Example: Continuation Application Form ADM-115 should be used for staffing. Instructions and consultation may be obtained from the mental health section of the appropriate HHS Regional Office. Application is sent to the Regional Office with copy to Acting Director, Division of Mental Health Service Programs, NIMH, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857. This program is subject to the provision of OMB Circular No. A-110.

Award Procedure — This section lists the basic procedural steps for awarding assistance, beginning with the organizational components of the Federal agency that has final approval authority for the application and ending with the lowest level at which Federal resources are expended. Also indicated is whether assistance passes through the initial applicant for further distribution by intermediate level applicants to groups or individuals in the private sector.

Accepted applications are subjected to evaluation by the headquarters, regional, local or district office to determine the feasibility of the proposed project to include consistency with Federal and individual agency policies concerning its scope and purpose. Grant payments may be made by a letter of credit, advance by Treasury check, or reimbursement by Treasury check. At this time, notification of the award is also sent (by the Federal agency) to the State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) as prescribed by Treasury Circular 1082. (SCIRAs are State agencies located in each State, designated by the Governor to serve as the central reception point for Federal grant-in-aid information. The Department of the Treasury provides Federal agencies with the addresses of SCIRAs.) Awards may be made by the headquarters office directly to the applicant, an agency field office, a regional office, or by an authorized county office.

Example: The Regional Health Administrator makes awards to approved applicants and provides required notification to designated State Central Information Reception Agency in accordance with Treasury Circular 1082.

Deadlines — When available, this section indicates the deadlines for applications to the funding agency which will be stated in terms of the date(s) or between what dates the application should be received. Reference is made to new applications, continuations, renewals, and supplementals. Application deadline information is also indicated in the Deadlines Index, in the agency's program guidelines, or announced in the Federal Register. Where not available, applicants should contact the funding agency for deadline information.

Example: Staffing: Determined by award period (contact the Regional Office).

Range of Approval or Disapproval Time — This section informs the applicant of the representative range of time required for the application to be processed (in terms of days and months) at the Federal level.

Example: 90 to 120 days.

Appeals — In some cases, there are no provisions for appeal. Where applicable, this section discusses appeal procedures or allowable rework time for resubmission of applications to be processed by the funding agency. Appeal procedures vary with individual programs and are either listed in this section or applicants are referred to appeal procedures documented in the relevant Code of Federal Regulations (CFR).

Example: Not applicable. (An appeal was not applicable in this case. A related program (13.231) allows applicants to reapply if revised applications are submitted.)

Renewals — This section advises the applicant whether renewals or extensions of applications are available and the procedures for such. In some instances, renewal procedures may be the same as the application procedure, e.g., for projects of a non-continuing nature renewals will be treated as new, competing applications; for projects of an on-going nature renewals may be given annually.

Example: This program is on-going and is renewed annually. Grantees are required to update their plan and submit a current year budget.

ASSISTANCE CONSIDERATIONS:

Formula and Matching Requirements — This section indicates the formula or matching requirements prescribed in the allocation of funds. A formula may be based on population, per capita income, etc. This section also informs applicants whether there are any matching requirements to be met when participating in the cost of a project. In general, the matching share represents that portion of the project costs not borne by the Federal Government. Usually a minimum percentage for matching share is prescribed by program legislation, and matching share requirements are included in the grant agreement. Attachment F of OMB Circular No. A-102 sets forth the criteria and procedures for allowability and evaluation of matching share requirements which may be cash or in-kind contributions made by State and local governments or other agencies, institutions, private organizations, or individuals to satisfy matching requirements of Federal grants or loans.

Cash contributions represent the grantees' cash outlay, including the outlay of money contributed to the grantee by other public agencies, institutions, private organizations or individuals. When authorized by Federal regulation, Federal funds received from other grants may be considered as the grantees' cash contribution.

In-kind contributions represent the value of noncash contributions provided by the grantee, other public agencies and institutions, private organizations or individuals. In-kind contributions may consist of charges for real property and equipment, and value of goods and services directly benefitting and specifically identifiable to the grant program. When authorized by Federal legislation, property purchased with Federal funds may be considered as grantees' in-kind contribution.

Example: Staffing: Federal funds on a decreasing percentage basis over a period of 8 years 90 percent - 1st and 2nd years; 80 percent - 3rd year; 75 percent - 4th and 5th years; 70 percent - 6th, 7th and 8th years. Non-poverty areas are entitled to: 80 percent - 1st and 2nd years; 75 percent - 3rd year; 60 percent - 4th year; 45 percent - 5th year; 30 percent - 6th, 7th and 8th years.

Length and Time Phasing of Assistance — This section indicates the time period that the assistance is normally available, whether there are any restrictions placed on the time permitted to use the funds awarded, and the timing of disbursement of the assistance, e.g., lump sum, annually, quarterly, or as required.

Example: Staffing grants are limited to eight years by law. Payments either on a Monthly Cash Request System or under a Letter of Credit.

POST ASSISTANCE REQUIREMENTS:

Reports — This section indicates whether program reports, expenditure reports, cash reports or performance monitoring is required by the Federal funding agency, and specifies at what intervals (monthly, annually, etc.), this must be accomplished.

Example: Interim progress reports submitted annually as part of a non-competing application; report of expenditures due annually; immediate reporting of any inventions.

Audits — This section discusses the type, frequency, and time periods audits are required by the Federal Agency. For certain programs in the Catalog, audit procedures and requirements are set forth in OMB Circular No. A-73 (formerly FMC 73-2) Audit of Federal Operations and Programs, or in OMB Circular No. A-102 (Attachment P). Applicants should consult the Federal agency concerning other audit requirements.

Example: Annually by an accredited auditor in accordance with generally accepted principles. A copy to be furnished to the regional office within 30 days of issuance. All grants are subject to periodic inspection and audit by Federal auditors to assure proper accounting and use of grant funds.

Records — This section indicates the record retention requirements and the type of records the Federal agency may require. Not included are the normally imposed requirements of the General Accounting Office. For programs falling under the purview of OMB Circular No. A-102, record retention is set forth in Attachment C. For other programs, record retention is governed by the funding agency's requirements.

Example: Three year record retention requirement; records shall be retained beyond the 3 year period if audit findings have not been resolved.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION:

Account Identification — This 11-digit budget code identifies the account from which a program is funded as expressed in the Appendix to the Federal Budget. For identification code 75-0350-0-1-551, the first two digits represent the Federal agency code, and the third through sixth digits identify the apropriation (or fund) basic account symbol assigned by the Treasury Department. Where two or more accounts with different Treasury basic account symbols are included in a consolidated program, 99 will be the third and fourth digits, the fifth digit will be the fund type and the sixth digit will reflect the sequence of consolidated programs for that fund type within the agency. The seventh digit identifies the timing of transmittal of budget estimates:

- 0-Regular budget schedules
- 1-Supplemental under existing legislation
- 2-Proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation
- 3-Proposed for later transmittal under existing legislation
- 4-Supplemental -- additional authorizing legislation required
- 5-Recission proposal
- 6-Supplemental request pending

The eighth digit identifies the type of government fund involved:

1- General fund

General Fund Appropriation Accounts - Accounts established to record amounts appropriated by the Congress to be expended for the general support of the Government.

General Fund Receipt Accounts - Accounts credited with all receipts that are not earmarked by law for a specific purpose.

2- Special fund

Special Fund Appropriation Accounts - Accounts established to record appropriated amounts of special fund receipts to be expended for special programs in accordance with specific provisions of law.

Special Fund Receipt Accounts - Accounts credited with receipts from specific sources that are earmarked by law for a specific purpose.

3- Public Enterprise Revolving Fund Accounts - Funds authorized by Congress to be credited with receipts primarily from the public, that are generated by, and earmarked to finance, a continuing cycle of business-type operations.

4- Intragovernmental Revolving or Management Fund

Intragovernmental Fund Accounts - Accounts established to facilitate financing transactions within and between Federal agencies. These funds may be classified as intragovernmental revolving funds or management funds.

Intragovernmental Revolving Fund Accounts - Funds authorized by law to carry out a cycle of intragovernmental business-type operations. These funds are credited with offsetting collections from other agencies and accounts.

7- Trust Fund (non-revolving) - Funds collected and used by the Federal Government for carrying out specific purposes and programs according to terms of a trust agreement or statute, such as the social security and unemployment trust funds. Trust funds are administered by the Government in a fiduciary capacity and are not available for the general purposes of the Government. Trust fund receipt accounts are credited with receipts generated by the terms of the trust agreement or statute. Trust fund receipts that are not anticipated to be used in the immediate future are generally invested in interest bearing Government securities and earn interest for the trust fund. Trust fund expenditure accounts record amounts appropriated from trust fund receipts to be expended in carrying out the specific purposes or programs under the trust agreement or statute. A special category of trust funds called trust revolving funds is used to carry out a cycle of business-type operations, e.g., the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

8- Trust Fund (revolving) - A fund established to finance a cycle of operations through amounts received by the fund. There are three types of revolving funds: public enterprise, intragovernmental revolving, and trust revolving funds.

9- Deposit Fund - Accounts established to facilitate the accounting for collections that are either (a) held in suspense temporarily and later refunded or paid into some other fund of the Government upon administrative or legal determination as to the proper disposition thereof or (b) held by the Government as banker or agent for others and paid out at the discretion of the depositor. These accounts are not included in the budget totals and they are not available for expenses of the Government, although they do provide a means of financing the budget.

The last three digits represent the functional classification (code) used in the latest Federal Budget document, unless noted otherwise by the Office of Management and Budget. In cases where a program is split between two or more subfunctions: (a) if all subfunctions are in the same major function, the code is the same as for the major function; or (b) if two or more major functions are involved the digits '999' are used.

Example: 75-1361-0-1-550.

Obligations — The dollar amounts listed in this section represent obligations for the past fiscal year (PY), estimates for the current fiscal year (CY), and estimates for the budget fiscal year (BY) as reported by the Federal agencies. In each succeeding edition of the Catalog, the dollar amounts are revised to reflect changes which may result from supplemental appropriations, amendments, etc. Each program indicates what the obligation figures represent in terms of the type of assistance provided. Obligations for nonfinancial assistance programs indicate the administrative expenses involved in the operation of a program as an indication of the magnitude of the services being provided, or the items involved in obligations.

Example: (Grants) PY $19,853,000; CY est $20,407,000; and BY est $14,830,000.

Range and Average of Financial Assistance — This section lists the representative range (smallest to largest) of the amount of financial assistance available. These figures are based upon funds awarded in the past fiscal year and the current fiscal year to date. Also indicated is an approximate average amount of awards which were made in the past and current fiscal years.

Example: Formula: $26,355 to $691,481; $235,305.

PROGRAM ACCOMPLISHMENTS — This section briefly describes the accomplishments of a program using quantitative data, focussing on program output, results achieved, or services rendered during the past fiscal year, the current fiscal year, and projections for the coming fiscal year.

Example: In the past fiscal year, 140 applications were received and 140 staffing awards were issued. Approximately 147 continuation grants were funded during the current fiscal year and 103 are estimated to be funded in the budget fiscal year.

REGULATIONS, GUIDELINES, AND LITERATURE — This section lists the title, number, and price of guidelines, handbooks, manuals and other officially published information pertinent to a program. Since program regulations are published first in the Federal Register (FR) and later in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), citations to the CFR are listed.

Example: Interim guidelines available in application kits.

INFORMATION CONTACTS:

Regional or Local Office — This section lists the agency contact person, address and telephone number of the Federal regional or local office(s) to be contacted for detailed information regarding a program such as: 1) current availability of funds and the likelihood of receiving assistance within a given period; 2) whether the program is suitable for joint funding (where not indicated in the Uses and Use Restrictions section of the program); 3) preapplication and application forms required; 4) whether a preapplication conference is recommended; 5) assistance available in preparation of applications; 6) written instructions on A-95 (Part I) procedures and other circulars; 7) whether applications must be submitted to both State and areawide clearinghouses; 8) location of the clearinghouses; 9) State Plan submission date and the Federal office to receive the plan; 10) the availability of funds for preparation of a State Plan; 11) whether funding decisions are made at the headquarters, regional or local level; 12) application renewal procedures (including continuations and supplementals) or appeal procedures for rejected applications; and, 13) recently published program guidelines and material.

For most programs in the Catalog, this section references Appendix IV of the Catalog (Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses); however, certain programs list contact information under this section because of the small number of offices and/or the small number of programs for which the offices are relevant.

Example: ADAMHA Branch of the appropriate HHS Regional Office (see Appendix IV).

(Appendix IV listing) Region 1
(Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont)
William Farrow
John F. Kennedy Federal Bldg.
Government Center
Boston, MA 02203
(617) 123-4567
(Use same 7-digit number for FTS)

Headquarters Office — This section lists names and addresses of the office at the headquarters level with direct operational responsibility for managing a program. A telephone number is also provided in cases where a regional or local office is not normally able to answer detailed inquiries concerning a program. Also listed are names and telephone numbers of information contacts for use by applicants in the Metropolitan Washington area.

Example: Dr. Steven Sharfstein, Acting Director, Division of Mental Health Service Programs, National Institute of Mental Health, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20857. Telephone: (301) 123-4567 (Use same 7-digit number for FTS).

RELATED PROGRAMS — This section of the program description lists all programs in the Catalog that are closely related based on objectives and program uses. Applicants should also check these programs since they may provide additional assistance.

Example: 13.232, Maternal and Child Health Services; 13.233, Maternal and Child Health Training; 13.242, Mental Health Research Grants; 13.295, Community Mental Health Centers—Comprehensive Support; 13.630, Developmental Disabilities—Basic Support.

EXAMPLES OF FUNDED PROJECTS: This section indicates the different types of projects which have been funded in the past. The examples give potential applicants an idea of projects that may be accepted for funding. With the exception of formula grant programs, with reporting requirements from a State agency to a Federal agency, both this and the following section pertain to most financial assistance programs.

Example: Awards are made only for staffing of facilities offering mental health services for children.

CRITERIA FOR SELECTING PROPOSALS: This section indicates the criteria used by the Federal grantor agency to evaluate proposals in order to inform potential applicants of the application review process and the criteria used to award funds for projects.

Example: The criteria for selecting proposals is based upon the extent the project will contribute to needed services and training, capability of applicant to provide services and training, more effective utilization of personnel providing mental health services, and development of new methods or information.

APPENDICES——The last section of the Catalog contains five appendices: Programs Requiring Circular Coordination (Appendix I); the Authorization Appendix (Appendix II); Commonly Used Abbreviations and Acronyms (Appendix III); Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses (Appendix IV); and Sources of Additional Information Contacts (Appendix V).

Appendix I — Programs Requiring Circular Coordination: The following is a brief description of the policy circulars referenced in the programs and in this Appendix. The description explains the purpose of the circulars, to whom they apply, and the general procedures to follow in applying for assistance.

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-95 (REVISED) EVALUATION, REVIEW, AND COORDINATION OF FEDERAL AND FEDERALLY ASSISTED PROGRAMS AND PROJECTS (Attachment A, Parts I and III). Reference: Federal Register, Volume 41, No. 8, January 13, 1976.

Purpose: Attachment A, Part I of A-95, Project Nofification and Review System (PNRS), facilitates coordinated planning on an intergovernmental basis for certain programs through review by State and areawide planning and development clearinghouses of applications for Federal assistance. Reference to Part I of A-95 appears in the Preapplication Coordination section of the Catalog program descriptions.

Attachment A, Part III of A-95, State Plans, provides Governors and Federal agencies with information about the relationship to State or areawide comprehensive planning of State Plans which are required or form the basis for funding under various programs. Part III provides for review of such plans by State and areawide clearinghouses. Reference to Part III of A-95 appears in the Credentials/Documentation section of the Catalog program descriptions.

Applicants: A-95, Part I applies to all applicants under any program covered thereby. Part III applies only to State agencies. For those programs covered by both Parts I and III, Part I applies to applicants for subgrants from the State agency administering a formula grant. The State Plan required for the formula grant is reviewed under Part III.

Application procedure: Under A-95, Part I, clearinghouse review is normally completed in a 60 day, two stage process. Applicants submit a Notification of Intent (NOI) to apply for assistance to both the State and areawide clearinghouses in whose jurisdiction the project is to be located for a 30 day review period. Applicants then submit the completed application to clearinghouses for a 30 day review prior to submission of the application to the Federal funding agency. Comments made by or through clearinghouses must be submitted with the application to the Federal agency.

Applicants should check with the Federal funding agency for the names and addresses of the appropriate State and areawide clearinghouses. Applicants are urged to notify clearinghouses as early as possible in the application development process.

In various States, State law requires review of applications for Federal assistance under certain programs not covered by A-95, Part I. Such laws are enforced through State rules and regulations. Applicants are encouraged to ascertain the existence of such laws and to acquaint themselves with applicable procedures through contact with clearinghouses.

(See the Project Notification and Review System chart and narrative on the following pages for detailed application procedures under Part I of A-95.)

Under A-95, Part III, State agencies submit a State Plan to the Governor or the Governor's designated Plan review agency for a 45 day review period prior to submission of the Plan to the Federal funding agency.

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-102, UNIFORM ADMINISTRATIVE REQUIREMENTS FOR GRANTS—IN—AID TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 42, No. 176, September 12, 1977.

Purpose: OMB Circular No. A-102 establishes uniform administrative requirements for programs that provide financial assistance through grants to State and local governments. It is intended to promote uniformity and consistency among Federal agencies in administration of grants by establishing standards in 16 areas. These areas include records retention, matching share, standards for grantees financial management systems, financial reporting requirements, standard forms for applying for Federal assistance, and audit standards. Only specific requirements imposed by the legislation establishing a grant program can take precedence over these and other standards included in the circular. Reference to this circular appears in the Preapplication coordination section of programs to which the requirement applies.

Applicants: State, local and federally recognized Indian tribal governments exclusive of institutions of higher education and hospitals.

Application procedure: Along with other administrative requirements of this circular, Attachment M sets forth the standard application forms to be used by State and local governments in applying for Federal grants except those Federal formula grants which do not require grantees to apply for Federal funds on a project basis. As indicated in the Attachment the standard forms and their purposes are briefly described below and are available from the Federal grantor agency:

1. Standard Form 424 - Federal Assistance: This form, which replaces Part I of the following applications, must be used as a cover sheet for the preapplication and the application forms described below.

2. Preapplication for Federal Assistance: This form is used to: (1) Establish communication between the Federal grantor agency and the applicant; (2) determine the applicant's eligibility; (3) determine how well the project can compete with similar applications from others; and (4) eliminate any proposals which have little or no chance for Federal funding before applicants incur significant expenditures for preparing an application. Preapplication forms shall be required for all construction, land acquisition and land development projects or programs for which the need for Federal funding exceeds $100,000. The Federal grantor agency may require the use of the preapplication form for other types of grant programs or for those for which the Federal fund request is for $100,000 or less. In addition, Federal agencies shall establish procedures allowing State and local government applicants to submit, if they so desire, the preapplication form when mandatory requirements for preapplication do not exist.

3. Federal Assistance Application for Nonconstruction Programs: This form is designed to accommodate several programs and shall be used by the applicant for all actions covered by Attachment M except where the major purpose of the grant involves construction, land acquisition, or development or single-purpose and one-time grant applications for less than $10,000 which do not require clearinghouse approval, an environmental impact statement, or the relocation of persons, businesses, or farms.

4. Federal Assistance Application for Construction Programs: This form is required for all grants where the major purpose of the program involves construction, land acquisition, and land development, except when the Application for Federal Assistance-Short Form is used.

5. Application for Federal Assistance — Short Form: This form is used for all grants for single-purpose and one-time grant applications for less than $10,000 not requiring clearinghouse approval, an environmental impact statement, or the relocation of persons, businesses, or farms. Federal grantor agencies may, at their discretion, authorize the use of this form for applications for larger amounts.

For all forms described herein all requests by grantees for changes, continuations, and supplementals to approved grants shall be submitted on the same form as the original application. For these purposes, only the required pages of the forms should be submitted.

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-110, GRANTS AND AGREEMENTS WITH INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION, HOSPITALS, AND OTHER NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 41, No. 148, July 30, 1976.

Purpose: Sets forth administrative requirements for the administration of grants and other agreements to include money or property in lieu of money; does not include technical assistance programs providing services, or loans, loan guarantees, insurance, or direct payments to individuals. Reference to this circular appears in the Application Procedure section of programs that apply.

Applicants: Public and private institutions of higher education, hospitals, and other quasi-public and nonprofit organizations. The circular applies to agencies administering grants made to the above recipients and to their sub-recipients. (This circular does not apply to State and local governments covered by OMB Circular No. A-102.)

Application procedure: Standard Form 424 must be used for applications when applying for grants under programs covered by Attachment A, Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

OMB CIRCULAR NO. A-111, JOINTLY FUNDED ASSISTANCE TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS AND NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 41, No. 148, July 30, 1976.

Purpose: Establishes policies and procedures to be followed in the joint funding of related programs of Federal assistance pursuant to the Joint Funding Simplification Act of 1974. Under one application, applicants may apply for resources available from more than one Federal agency, program, or appropriation, including assistance from State sources. Programs considered suitable for joint funding are identified in the Uses and Use Restrictions section of the programs. For programs that are not identified as suitable for joint funding, the applicant may consult the headquarters or field office of the appropriate agency for further information on statutory or other restrictions involved.

Applicants: State and local governments, Indian tribes, and nonprofit organizations acting separately or jointly in seeking assistance with respect to a single project.

Application procedure: Applicants submit the preapplication and application forms contained in Attachment H of this circular to the Federal Regional Council (FRC) in the region in which the applicant is located, and to State agencies from which the applicant requests assistance. If a Federal program being considered for joint funding assistance is subject to Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95, the entire joint funding application is subject to the policies and provisions of that circular. If an environmental impact statement is required, arrangements should be made for preparation of a joint or single environmental impact statement for the project. Applications for Federal assistance are submitted to the lead agency designated by the FRC. The FRC provides guidance and coordination on all applications for joint funding.

FEDERAL MANAGEMENT CIRCULAR 74-4, COST PRINCIPLES APPLICABLE TO GRANTS AND CONTRACTS WITH STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS. Reference: 34 CFR 255.

Purpose: Establishes principles for determining allowable direct and indirect costs applicable to grants and contracts (including subgrants and subcontracts) and provides standards for determining the allowability of selected items of cost. Reference to this circular appears in the Credentials/Documentation section of programs that apply.

Applicants: State and local governments and other applicants as determined by the Federal funding agency. This circular does not apply to publicly financed institutions of higher education (covered by OMB Circular No. A-21, Cost Principles for Educational Institutions, formerly FMC 73-8) or publicly owned hospitals and other providers of medical care subject to the requirements of the Federal agency.

Application procedure:

a) The Department of Health and Human Services, in consultation with other Federal agencies concerned, will be responsible for negotiation, approval, and audit of cost allocation plans, which will be submitted to it by the States. These plans will cover central support service costs of the State.

b) At the grantee department level in a State, a single Federal agency will have been assigned responsibility similar to that set forth in (a), above, for negotiation, approval, and audit of the indirect cost proposal.

c) Cost allocation plans will be retained at the local government level for audit by a designated Federal agency except in those cases where the designated agency requests that cost allocation plans be submitted to it for negotiation and approval.

d) At the grantee department level of local governments, the Federal agency with the predominant interest in the work of the grantee department will be responsible for the necessary negotiation, approval and audit of the indirect cost proposal.

An additional reference source for application procedures, A Guide for State and Local Government Agencies, is published by the Department of Health and Human Services and is available at the Government Printing Office.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY CIRCULAR 1082, NOTIFICATION TO STATES OF GRANT-IN-AID INFORMATION. Reference: Federal Register, Volume 40, No. 226, November 21, 1975.

Purpose: Establishes procedures for Federal agency notification to the State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) of the purpose and amount of grants or grants-in-aid in the form of cost reimbursable contracts awarded to States and local governments, (including the District of Columbia), and territories and possessions of the U.S. Also reported are all other types of Federal financial assistance (loans, loan guarantees, and insurance) awarded to State-affiliated institutions of higher education, quasi-public agencies and nonprofit institutions. Grants-in-aid covered by this circular are comprised of two categories for reporting purposes:

1) basic reporting of Federal assistance information which includes all grants or grants-in-aid in the form of cost reimbursable contracts awarded to State and local governments, and 2) supplemental reporting of Federal assistance information which includes all other financial assistance regardless of the recipient type, where there is a perceivable need for such information to facilitate State and local government planning, budgeting, or program administration. For basic reporting, Federal agencies submit a Report of Federal Action to the appropriate SCIRA using SF 424. Supplemental reporting is submitted to the SCIRA using the most practicable means available to the agency. As indicated in Appendix I, programs with one asterisk have been identified by agencies as basic reporting. Programs having two asterisks have been identified as basic as well as supplemental reporting. Reference to this circular appears in the Award Procedure section of programs to which the requirements apply.

Applicants: The requirements of this circular are applicable only to Federal agencies administering grant-in-aid programs.

Application procedure: This circular does not contain requirements for the applicant in applying for Federal assistance.

ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENTS

Purpose: Specific programs listed in the Catalog have been determined to have a significant effect on the environment and require an environmental impact assessment or an environmental impact statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and Executive Order 11514 of March 4, 1970. (Significant effects include actions that may have both beneficial and detrimental effects.) Reference to this requirement appears in the Preapplication Coordination section of programs that apply.

Applicants: The requirements apply to applicants seeking assistance under programs identified in the Catalog, or other programs so identified by the grantor agency, as requiring an environmental impact statement or an environmental impact assessment.

Application procedure: In the early stages of project application, and in all cases prior to agency decisions concerning major actions on applications, the applicant should be advised by the Federal funding agency that environmental impact information is required (to be submitted under the agency's guidelines) in connection with the proposed project for an environmental assessment (to be made by the Federal agency), or an environmental impact statement (to be supplied by the Federal agency) concerning the project. Although the list in Appendix I is not conclusive, it contains programs normally requiring either an environmental assessment or an environmental impact statement.

Appendix II — Authorization Appendix: This appendix lists Acts, Executive Orders and Public Law numbers which mandate programs in the Catalog. Acts and Executive Order citations are listed in alphabetic sequence and Public Law citations are listed numerically by the Congress. The citations are followed by their corresponding program numbers.

Appendix III — Commonly Used Abbreviations and Acronyms.

Appendix IV — Agency Regional and Local Office Addresses: This appendix lists the names, addresses and telephone numbers of the regional and local offices which should be contacted for detailed information concerning a program and for initiating the process for applying for assistance. In cases where a Federal agency does not have a regional or local office, the headquarters office listed in the program description should be contacted.

Appendix V — Sources of Additional Information Contacts: Additional information concerning Federal programs is available from Federal Information Centers, Federal Regional Councils, and Federal Executive Boards as listed in this Appendix.

CH State or Areawide Planning and Development Clearinghouse

The Project Notification and Review System (PNRS) is a two-part system consisting of two separate 30-day periods for review of applications by State and areawide clearinghouses commencing with the clearinghouses' receipt of the Notification of Intent (NOI) to apply for assistance. During the first 30-day period, the NOI is reviewed by the clearinghouses and submitted for comment to State agencies, local governments, and other public agencies whose projects or programs may be affected by the proposed project. During the second 30-day period, the completed, formal application is reviewed by the clearinghouses and comments returned to the applicant. The applicant then submits the completed application, including clearinghouse comments, to the Federal funding agency. The following pages contain detailed procedures applicants should follow in applying for Federal assistance programs covered by Attachment A, Part I of OMB Circular No. A-95 (revised).

Program Application Procedures

1. Applicant contacts Federal funding agency to:

   (a) request the agency's written procedures and regulations implementing the requirements of A-95, Part I;

   (b) obtain the address of the clearinghouses in whose jurisdiction the proposed project is located;

2. Applicant submits the Notification of Intent (NOI) to apply for assistance to clearinghouses for a 30 day review.

The NOI may be submitted on Standard Form 424. However, many clearinghouses have developed their own notification forms and instructions. Applicants are urged to contact the clearinghouses for this information in order to expedite the review process.

The NOI should include a summary description of the project for which assistance is being sought. Where not otherwise prescribed by the Federal funding agency, the summary should contain the following information, as appropriate and to the extent available (A-95, Part I):

(a) identity of the applicant agency, organization, or individual applying for assistance;

(b) the geographic location of the project to be assisted;

(c) a brief description of the proposed project (type, purpose, general size or scale, estimated cost, beneficiaries, or other characteristics which will enable clearinghouses to identify agencies of State or local government having plans, programs or projects that might be affected by the proposed project);

(d) a statement as to whether the applicant has been advised by the funding agency that environmental impact information is required;

(e) the Federal program title, Catalog program number, and the Federal funding agency as listed in the latest Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

(f) the estimated date the applicant expects to formally file the application with the funding agency.

Exceptions and Variations

If the applicant submits a completed application to the clearinghouse without having submitted a NOI (because of the project's simplicity or because the clearinghouse's procedures do not require a review at the notification stage), the clearinghouse may have a total of 60 days to review the completed application.

If the applicant submits both the NOI and the completed application within the first 30 days, the clearinghouse may have the number of days remaining in the initial 30-day notification period and the second 30 days to complete the review. (The submission of the completed application initiates the beginning of the second 30-day period.) If the clearinghouse cannot complete the review within 30 days, normally the applicant is notified to that effect.

If the applicant receives no response from the State or areawide clearinghouse within the allotted 30 days for review of the NOI, the applicant may contact the clearinghouse to ascertain the status of the NOI, or submit a completed application to the clearinghouse initiating final review of the application.

The clearinghouse may not wish to review the completed application; however, after the initial review, an information copy of the completed application may be requested by the clearinghouse at the time it is submitted to the funding agency.

Applications for renewal or continuation of grants, or applications not submitted to or acted on by the funding agency within one year after completion of clearinghouse review will be subject to a second review upon request by the clearinghouse. Part I of Circular A-95 also requires clearinghouse review of proposed amendments to applications as well as as review of the original application. Review of amendments is normally completed within 30 days.

Special Purpose Unit of Local Government Versus General Local Government

If assistance is being sought by a special purpose unit of local government, the clearinghouses must assure that any unit of general local government having jurisdiction over the area in which the project is to be located has the opportunity to confer, consult, or comment upon the project and its application.

In the case of an application submitted by a special purpose unit of local government, where accompanying comments indicate that the unit of general local government having jurisdiction over the area in which the project is to be located has submitted or plans to submit an application for assistance for the same or similar type of project, clearinghouses will assure that appropriate considerations and preferences are accorded the unit of general local government as specified in Section 402 of the Intergovernmental Cooperation Act of 1968.

Applications for Housing Programs

For housing programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the Veterans Administration, and the Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture, the developer submits a preliminary application to the funding agency. The application should describe the project in enough detail for evaluation purposes, but lacking detailed construction plans, so that the agency can establish the feasibility and/or eligibility of the proposed project for the type of funding sought. The funding agency will transmit a copy of the initial application to the appropriate State and areawide clearinghouses for review. The clearinghouses will have 30 days to review the application and forward comments to the agency. Processing of applications at the agency will proceed concurrently with the clearinghouses' review. This procedure includes only applications involving new construction or substantial rehabilitation, and will apply to applications for loans, loan guarantees, mortgage insurance or other housing assistance. (Additional units in a substantially completed – partially built up – subdivision are not subject to a funding review. Federal agencies do not finance subdivisions, but evaluate the subdivision plan.)

As an alternative to the above procedure, the developer may submit the application directly to the appropriate clearinghouses for review prior to submitting it to the funding agency to identify any potential difficulties that could cause delay or rejection of the project. This procedure, however, involves 60 days for review. (Some HUD offices have required developers to contact clearinghouses before submitting an application to them.) The extent to which this approach and associated procedures are used should be worked out between the regional offices of the Federal agency and the clearinghouses.

Land/Water Use Programs and Construction in the National Capital Region

For project applications involving land or water use and development or construction in the National Capital Region (the District of Columbia; Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties, Maryland; Arlington, Fairfax, Prince William, and Loudoun Counties and the City of Alexandria, Virginia), a copy of the application is to be sent to the National Capital Planning Commission, the official Federal planning agency for the National Capital Region, in addition to the State and areawide clearinghouses.

3. Clearinghouses notify public agencies.

Upon receipt of the NOI, the clearinghouses have a total of 30 days to react to and gather comments about a project from public agencies.

State clearinghouse will disseminate project notification to the appropriate State and multistate agencies which might have programs affected by the proposed project, including where appropriate, environmental agencies and State agencies responsible for enforcing or furthering the objectives of civil rights laws. The areawide clearinghouse will disseminate project notifications to local government agencies or regional bodies whose interest might be affected by the proposed project, and where appropriate, local agencies with environmental and civil rights responsibilities and, upon request, to the local chief executives for projects proposed within their jurisdictions so that they may coordinate internal reviews by municipal and county agencies.

4. Public agencies review proposed project.

The public agencies will review the proposed project and inform the clearinghouses of their interest, if any. The staff of an areawide clearinghouse also conducts its own review to evaluate the consistency and significance of proposed projects to State, areawide, and local plans and programs for the area.

5.(a) No issues raised by public agencies or clearinghouses.

If no issues are raised, the clearinghouse 'signs off' and notifies the applicant. The applicant has fulfilled the requirements of Part I and may complete the application and submit it to the funding agency unless the clearinghouse specifies that it wishes to review the completed application. If it does, the clearinghouse will have an additional 30 days for review. The applicant then submits the application to the funding agency. The majority of applications do not raise any issues and do not go pass this stage of the review process.

5.(b) Issues raised by public agencies or clearinghouses.

Public agencies and/or the clearinghouses may find that a project 1) is not consistent with area planning (duplicates or conflicts with existing programs), 2) would be minimally effective, 3) would adversely affect the environment, 4) would not meet civil rights requirements, etc. These issues will be resolved in conferences held with the applicant.

Although areawide review procedures vary widely, many clearinghouses have project review committees and/or boards (usually consisting of local elected officials) that will become involved in formal review of the application, after initial staff reviews have been made and issues identified. The project review committee will consider the application and make its recommendations, the board then considers the reviews and adopts the official position of the clearinghouse on the applications at regularly scheduled meetings. The meetings are often open to the public and may be attended by the applicant (clearinghouse procedures will govern).

6. Clearinghouse arranges conference with applicant.

The clearinghouse will arrange conference as necessary with the applicant within 30 days of NOI to apply for assistance. Conferences may be held between the applicant, concerned public agencies, and the clearinghouses staff to 1) explore the project in greater detail, 2) strengthen the project, 3) identify possible conflicts, differences or mutuality of interest, or 4) resolve conflicts. If there is continued interest by the public agencies, the applicant, the clearinghouse, and the agencies may cooperate in developing an application.

7.(a) Conflicts resolved.

When conflicts are resolved and the clearinghouse is satisfied with the application, the clearinghouse 'signs off' and the applicant is notified. The clearinghouse may request review of the final application to make sure it reflects any changes in the project that may have been negotiated.

7.(b) Conflicts cannot be resolved.

When the parties involved agree that conflicts or differences concerning the proposed project cannot be resolved, the clearinghouse notifies the applicant that it will supply comments to that effect which must accompany the final application.

8. The clearinghouse requests the applicant to submit a completed application for final review. During the second 30-day review period, the clearinghouses and interested public agencies prepare comments on the proposal.

9. Clearinghouse has 30 days to submit formal comments to applicant.

10. Applicant submits application to the funding agency along with all clearinghouse comments and a statement that those comments were considered. Comments generated by the review process may be both positive and negative; thus, the applicant may choose to include a rebuttal to negative comments.

11. The Federal funding agency.

The Federal funding agency considers the application and the comments from the clearinghouses and public agencies and informs the applicant and the clearinghouse of any major action (awards, rejections, deferrals, withdrawals, returns for amendments) taken on the application within seven working days.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PROPOSAL WRITING AND FOLLOWING GRANT APPLICATION PROCEDURES

I. INTRODUCTION

This section is designed to assist persons and institutions seeking a grant from a Federal assistance program.

The ideas and suggestions in this section are not all-inclusive. They are intended as a general guide. The material applies to most assistance proposals. Applicants should remember that the basic requirements, application forms, information and procedures vary with the Federal agency making the grant award.

The legislative intent and the administrative guidelines of Federal programs (the Authorization section of the Catalog program description) are useful as a starting point in considering if and how a proposal matches the needs of the Federal granting agency. The remaining sections of the Catalog program description further define features of the Federal program.

A telephone call or a letter to the Federal agency contact person (the Information Contacts section of the Catalog program description) can provide invaluable help in the beginning stages of proposal development. The potential applicant should consult the program's information contact person before developing a proposal to determine whether an application should be made, if there is money available, applicable deadlines, and the process used by the agency in accepting applications. It is important to identify any priorities the Federal agency considers significant. Agencies often prepare guidelines for specific programs to assist applicants in proposal development. These guidelines should be requested by the applicant.

Individuals without prior grant writing experience may find it useful to attend a grantsmanship workshop. A workshop can amplify the basic information presented here. Applicants requiring additional readings on grantsmanship and proposal development should consult the references listed at the end of this section and other library resources.

II. INITIAL PROPOSAL DEVELOPMENT

A. The Concept Paper

After outlining the idea for a proposal, it is useful to develop a concept paper (preliminary proposal) perhaps one or two pages in length. The paper should attempt, at a minimum, to outline proposed goals, rationale, population to be served, estimate of cost, and expected program achievements. The author periodically should revise the paper as ideas about the proposal or grant requirements of the Federal program change. The paper should be distributed to interested persons and agencies in the community. They can be helpful by providing both review and comment on the proposal contents. Select someone who knows and someone who does not know about the subject matter of the paper. This procedure will serve to provide at least two perspectives on the contents; first, a substantive review of the material, and, second, insight into the clarity of the writing style and gramatical accuracy. Further, a review by someone who has submitted a proposal to the funding source in the past will yield information regarding experience with the agency's proposal preferences. The concept paper may be used later for both clearinghouse review (Notification of Intent), and if necessary, for the proposal summary page of the application which is usually one of the most important pages in the grant package. (Refer to the application kit for details on the development of the proposal summary page.) When developing an idea for a proposal it is important to determine if the idea has been or is now being considered in the applicant's locality or State. A careful check should be made with legislators and area government agencies and related public and private agencies which may have (or have had) grant awards or contracts to do similar work. If a similar program exists (or has existed in the past), the applicant may need to reconsider submitting the proposed project particularly if duplication of effort is perceived. Provided significant differences can be established between the existing and proposed project it may be unwise to pursue Federal assistance. The applicant must strive to select a 'fundable' project which can be supported in view of the local need. Alternatives, in the absence of Federal support, should be pointed out. The influence of the project both during and after the project period should be explained. The consequences of the project as a result of funding should be highlighted.

B. Community Support

Community support for most proposals is essential. Once an outline or concept paper has been developed, look for individuals or groups representing academic, political, professional and lay organizations who may be willing to support the proposal in writing. The type and caliber of community support is critical in the initial and subsequent review phases. Numerous letters of support can be persuasive to a grantor agency. Do not overlook support from local government agencies and public officials. Letters of endorsement detailing exact areas of project sanction and commitment are often requested as part of a proposal to a Federal agency. Several months may be required to develop letters of endorsement since something of value (e.g., buildings, staff, services) is sometimes negotiated between the parties involved. Many agencies require, in writing, affiliation agreements (a mutual agreement to share services between agencies) and building space commitments prior to either grant approval or award. A useful method of generating community support may be to hold meetings with the top decision makers in the community who would be concerned with the subject matter of the proposal. The forum for discussion may include a query into the merits of the proposal, development of a contract of support for the proposal, to generate data in support of the proposal, or development of a strategy to create proposal support from a large number of community groups.

C. Identification of a Funding Resource

A chart is provided in the Introduction (see, How to Use the Catalog) to guide users through Catalog sections and retrieve all pertinent program information available in the Catalog. For new Catalog users this chart may be consulted first for an orientation to the suggested method for identifying Federal financial assistance in the Catalog. A review of the Objectives and Uses and Use Restrictions sections of the Catalog program description can point out which programs might provide funding for an idea. Do not overlook the related programs as potential resources. Both the applicant and the grantor agency should have the same interests, intentions and needs if a proposal is to be considered an acceptable candidate for funding. Once a potential grantor agency is identified, call the contact person/number identified in Information Contacts and ask for a grant application kit. Later get to know some of the grantor agency personnel. Ask for suggestions, criticisms and advice about the proposed project. In many cases the more agency personnel know about the proposal the better the chance of support and of an eventual favorable decision. Sometimes it is useful to send the concept paper to a specific agency official in a separate cover letter, and ask for review and comment at the earliest possible convenience. Always check with the Federal agency to determine its preference if this approach is under consideration. If the review is unfavorable and differences cannot be resolved, ask the examining agency (official) to suggest another department or agency which may be interested in the proposal. A personal visit to the agency's regional office or headquarters is also important. A visit not only establishes face to face contact, but also may bring out some essential details about the proposal or help secure literature and references from the agency's library or clearinghouse. At the outset, applicants whose proposals are subject to OMB Circular No. A-95, Part I, are reminded that contact with Federal agency officials prior to project clearance does not circumvent the A-95 process. Such communication should occur only when specific advice is sought or clarification is required about the contents of the proposal, regulations and/or legislation. Applicants should be aware of and comply with OMB Circular No. A-95 requirements when applicable (see Catalog Introduction).

It may be useful to consider consulting the State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) to learn the types and dollar amounts of programs approved or rejected in the applicant's State. This organization is coordinated through the Governor's office in each State. Federal agencies are required to report funding information as funds are approved, increased or decreased among projects within a given State depending on the type of required reporting (see, Treasury Circular 1082 in the Catalog Introduction). Also, consider reviewing the Federal Budget for the current and budget fiscal years to determine proposed dollar amounts for particular budget functions.

The applicant should carefully study the eligibility requirements for each Federal program under consideration (see the Applicant Eligibility section of the Catalog program description). The applicant may learn he or she is required to provide services otherwise unintended such as a service to particular client groups, or involvement of specific institutions. It may necessitate, in some way, the modification of the original concept in order for the project to be eligible for funding. Questions about eligibility should be discussed with the program officer of the Federal program of interest.

Deadlines for submitting applications are often unnegotiable. They are usually associated with strict timetables for agency review. Some programs have more than one application deadline during the fiscal year. Applicants should plan proposal development around the established deadlines.

The timing used by the applicant in implementing Part II Section A, B and C above depends upon the stage of development of each section. The applicant should carefully balance the knowledge and understanding of each part prior to determining the first step and before proceeding to the formal development of the proposal.

III. WRITING AND DEVELOPING A PROPOSAL

A. Gathering Applicant Organizational Data

The applicant should gather data about its organization from all available sources. Most proposals require a description of an applicant's organization to describe its past and present operations. Some features to consider are:

1. A brief biography of board members and/or key staff; and
2. The organization's goals, philosophy, track record with other grantors and any success stories.

The data should be relevant to the goals of the Federal grantor agency and should establish the applicant's credibility.

B. Problem Statement Development

One of the key elements of a proposal is a clear, concise and well-supported statement of the problem to be addressed. The best way to collect information about the problem is to conduct and document both a formal and informal needs assessment for a program in the target or service area. There is a considerable body of literature on the exact assessment techniques to be used. Any local, regional or State government planning office or local university offering course work in planning and evaluation techniques should be able to provide excellent background references. Types of data that may be collected include: historical, geographic, quantifiable, factual, statistical, unobstrusive and philosophical information as well as studies completed by colleges, and literature searches from a public or university library. Local colleges or universities which have a department or section related to the proposal topic may help determine if there is interest in developing a student or faculty project to conduct a needs assessment. It may be helpful to include examples of the findings for highlight in the proposal. The information provided should be both factual and directly related to the problem addressed by the proposal. Areas to document are:

1. The purpose for developing the proposal;
2. The beneficiaries, who they are and how they will benefit;
3. The social and economic costs to be affected;
4. The nature of the problem (provide as much hard evidence as possible);
5. How the applicant organization came to realize the problem exists, and what is currently being done about the problem.
6. The alternatives when the funding is over. Explain what will happen to the project and the implications;
7. Most important, the specific manner through which problems might be solved. Review the resources needed, how they will be used and to what end.

IV. ACT OF WRITING

A. Preorganization

Prior to any formal development of a proposal the applicant should first complete the task of accumulating information, and then begin writing the proposal. The applicant should also have the grant application kit in hand.

One of the first steps in the development of an application is to identify a coordinating person and have this person thoroughly review the application kit. This task is best performed by the person with the major responsibility for the coordination of the proposal development tasks and may or may not be the person who knows the most about the proposal subject area. These are often two different persons. Make an outline of the forms, copy each one and put the originals in a secure file. Use these copies only when ready to type the final draft. Then substitute the filed copies in the application kit. It may be useful to develop a milestone chart (a type of schedule which charts significant events in the development of a proposal over time) to address and identify the implementation dates of the following:

1. Formatting the available information not requiring additional development;
2. Gathering data necessary for development of the proposal and where to get it;
3. Who and when staff will be available to assist with the project;
4. Item—by—item development to the first draft;
5. Schedule for the completion of the second and final drafts to be inspected by the coordinator.

Whenever steps in the milestone chart are delayed it is advisable to immediately negotiate the earliest possible new deadline with the affected parties. Care should be exercised to guarantee that the newly selected date does not throw off the entire project schedule. Most grant proposals will need to be copied four times or more. The original and copies will go to to the Federal grantor agency's program and/or grant office. Other copies may go to to single State agencies, regional and local government officials and board members (if any). If the copying is done internally it may be wise to identify a backup copy machine is case of mechanical failure. This may be critical when working against strict deadlines. Typist should be notified and scheduled in advance if possible. Prepare to commit enough financial resources to producing a proposal. It is difficult to gauge how much money, material and personnel will be needed, but some considerations are: person power (writers, typist, clerks, researchers, statisticians, consultants, etc.), supplies (typewriter, paper, copy machine, postage, binders, pencils and pens, correction fluid, types of stylus apparatus for charts, etc.), office space, a telephone and office equipment.

B. Getting Organized to Write the Proposal

Throughout the proposal writing stage keep a notebook handy to write down ideas. Periodically, try to connect ideas by reviewing the notebook. Never throw away written ideas during the grant writing stage. Maintain a file labeled 'Ideas' or by some other convenient title and review the ideas from time to time. The file should be easily accessible. The gathering of documents such as articles of incorporation, tax exemption certificates, bylaws, etc., should be completed, if possible, before the writing begins.

C. A Note on Special Technical Services

States and political subdivisions can obtain technical information services from Federal agencies when preparing proposals. A written request from the chief executive officer (governor, mayor or county executive) is required. Services are provided according to the Federal agency's special capabilities, mission and authorization by law. Assistance may include: statistical or other studies and compilations, development projects, technical tests and evaluations, technical information, training activities, surveys, reports and documents. All services must relate to either current or future needs of the Federal Government. Some form of proof is required to ensure that these services can be procured reasonably and expeditiously by the requesting agency through ordinary business channels. Federal agencies may require considerable time in supplying information. Consider such possible time lags when requesting assistance.

The following information (Sections D, E, F and Parts V and VI) is generally adaptable to all proposals, and will test both creativity and resourcefulness of the applicant.

D. Developing Program Objectives

Program objectives refer to specific activities in a proposal. It is necessary to identify all objectives related to the goals to be reached, and the methods to be employed to achieve the stated objectives. Consider quantities or things measurable and refer to a problem statement and the outcome of proposed activities when developing a well stated objective. The figures used should be verifiable. Remember, if the proposal is funded, the stated objectives will probably be used to evaluate program progress, so be realistic. There is literature available to help identify and write program objectives.

E. Writing the Solution — A Program Design

The program design refers to how the project is expected to work and solve the stated problem. Sketch out the following:

1. The activities to occur along with the related resources and staff needed to operate the project (inputs).

2. A flow chart of the organizational features of the project. Describe how the parts interrelate, where personnel will be needed and what they are expected to do. Identify the kinds of facilities, transportation and support services required (throughputs).

3. Explain what will be achieved through 1 and 2 above (outputs); i.e., plan for measurable results. Project staff may be required to produce evidence of program performance through an examination of stated objectives during either a site visit by the Federal grantor agency and or grant reviews which may involve peer review committees.

4. It may be useful to devise a diagram of the program design. For example, draw a three column block. Each column is headed by one of the parts (inputs, throughputs and outputs), and on the left (next to the first column) specific program features should be idenfitied (i.e., implementation, staffing, procurement, systems development, etc.). In the grid specify something about the program design, for example, assume the first column is labeled inputs and the first row is labeled staff. On the grid one might specify under inputs five nurses to operate a child care unit. The throughput might be to maintain charts, counsel the children, set up daily routine, etc., and outputs might be to discharge 25 healthy children per week. This type of procedure will help to conceptualize both the scope and detail of the project.

5. Wherever possible, justify in the narrative the course of action taken. The most economical method should be used that does not compromise or sacrifice project quality. The financial expenses associated with performance of the project will later become points of negotiation with the Federal program staff. If everything is not carefully justified in writing in the proposal, after negotiation with the Federal grantor agencies, the approved project may resemble less of the original concept. Carefully consider the pressures of the proposed implementation, that is, the time and money needed to acquire each part of the plan. A Program Evaluation and Review Technique (PERT) chart could be useful and supportive in justifying some proposals.

6. Highlight the innovative features of the proposal which could be considered distinct from other proposals under consideration.

6. Whenever possible use appendices to provide details, supplementary data, references, and information requiring indepth analysis. This type of data, although supportive of the proposal, if included in the body of the design, could detract from its readability. Appendices provide the proposal reader with immediate access to details if and when clarification of an idea, sequence or conclusion is required. Time tables, work plans, schedules, activities, metodologies, legal papers, personal vitae, letters of support, endorsements, etc. are examples of appendices.

F. Evaluating the Program

Most Federal agencies now require some form of program evaluation among grantees. The requirements of the proposed project should be explored carefully. Evaluations may be conducted by an internal staff member, an evaluation firm or both. The applicant should state the amount of time needed to evaluate, how the feedback will be distributed among the proposed staff, and a schedule for review and comment for this type of communication. Evaluation designs may start at the beginning, middle or end of a project, but the applicant should specify a start-up time. It is practical to submit an evaluation design at the start of a project for two reasons:

1. Convincing evaluations require the collection of appropriate data before and during program operations; and,

2. If the evaluation design cannot be prepared at the outset then a critical review of the program design may be advisable.

Even if the evaluation design has to be revised as the project progresses, it is much easier and cheaper to modify a good design. If the problem is not well defined and carefully analyzed for cause/effect relationships then a good evaluation design may be difficult to achieve. Sometimes a pilot study is needed to begin the identification of facts and relationships. Often a thorough literature search may be sufficient.

Evaluation requires both coordination and agreement among program decision makers (if known). Above all, the Federal grantor agency's requirements should be highlighted in the evaluation design. Also, Federal grantor agencies may require specific evaluation techniques such as designated data formats (an existing information collection system) or they may offer financial inducements for voluntary participation in a national evaluation study. The applicant should ask specifically about these points. Also, consult the Criteria For Funding Proposals section of the Catalog program description to determine the exact evaluation methods to be required for the program if funded.

V. BUDGET FORMULATION

A. Planning the Budget

Funding levels in Federal assistance programs change yearly. It is useful to review the appropriations over the past several years to try to project future funding levels (see Financial Information section of the Catalog program description).

However, it is safer to never anticipate that the income from the grant will be the sole support for the project. This consideration should be given to the overall budget requirements, and in particular, to budget line items most subject to inflationary pressures. Restraint is important in determining inflationary cost projections (avoid padding budget line items), but attempt to anticipate possible future increases. Some vulnerable budget areas are: utilities, rental of buildings and equipment, salary increases, food, telephones, insurance and tranportation. Budget adjustments are sometimes made after the grant award, but this can be a lengthy process. Be certain that implementation, continuation and phasedown costs can be met. Consider costs associated with leases, evaluation systems, hard/soft match requirements, audits, development, implementation and maintenance of information systems and accounting systems and other long-term financial commitments.

A well prepared budget justifies all expenses and is consistent with the proposal narrative. Some areas in need of an evaluation for consistency are: the salaries in the proposal in relation to those of the applicant organization should be similar; if new staff are being hired additional space and equipment should be considered, if necessary; if the budget calls for an equipment purchase it should be the type allowed by the grantor agency; if additional space is rented the increase in insurance should be supported; if an indirect cost rate applies to the proposal the division between direct and indirect costs should not be in conflict, and the aggregate budget totals should refer directly to the approved formula; if matching costs are required the contributions to the matching fund should be taken out of the budget unless otherwise specified in the application instructions.

It is very important to become familiar with Government-wide circular requirements. The Catalog identifies in the program description section the particular circulars applicable to a Federal program, and summarizes circular requirements in Appendix I. The applicant should thoroughly review the appropriate circulars since they are essential in determining items such as cost principles and conforming with Government guidelines for Federal domestic assistance.

VI. REVIEW

A. Criticism

At some point, perhaps after the first or second draft is completed, seek out a neutral third party to review the proposal working draft for continuity, clarity and reasoning. Ask for constructive criticism at this point, rather than wait for the Federal grantor agency to volunteer this information during the review cycle. For example, has the writer made unsupported assumptions or used jargon or excessive language in the proposal?

B. Signature

Most proposals are made to institutions rather than individuals. Often signatures of chief administrative officials is required. Check to make sure they are included in the proposal where appropriate.

C. Neatness

Proposals should be typed, collated, copied and packaged correctly and neatly(according to agency instructions, if any). Each package should be inspected to ensure uniformity from cover to cover. Binding may require either clamps or hard covers. Check with the Federal agency to determine its preference. A neat, organized and attractive proposal package can leave a positive impression with the reader about the proposal contents.

C. Mailing

A cover letter should always accompany a proposal. Standard U.S. Postal Service requirements apply unless otherwise indicated by the Federal agency. Make sure there is enough time for the proposals to reach their destinations. Otherwise, special arrangements may be necessary. Always coordinate such arrangements with the Federal grantor agency project office (the agency which will ultimately have the responsibility for the project), the grant office (the agency which will coordinate the grant review) and the contract office if necessary (the agency responsible for disbursement, grant award notices, etc.).

VII. ADDITIONAL SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Below are resources for more detail about grants and grantwriting. There are several very good private resources available which can be identified by consulting a public library.

A. Research Tools

THE FEDERAL REGISTER

The Federal Register, published daily, is the medium for making available to the public Federal agency regulations and other legal documents of the Executive Branch. These documents cover a wide range of Government activities. Here, Government requirements are published which involve environmental protection, consumer product safety, food and drug standards, occupational health and safety, and many more areas of concern to the public.

Perhaps more importantly, the Federal Register includes proposed changes in regulated areas. Each proposed change published carries an invitation for any citizen or group to participate in the consideration of the proposed regulation through the submission of written data, views, or arguments, and sometimes by oral presentations. Through the publication of proposed rules and notices of public meetings, citizens are given the opportunity to be informed about and participate in the workings of their Government.

The Federal Register Index is based on a consolidation of entries appearing in the issues of the Federal Register together with broad references. It is published monthly and is cumulated for 12 months. All Federal Register publications are available for purchase from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402.

THE CODE OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS

The Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) is a codification of the general and permanent rules published in the Federal Register by executive departments and agencies of the Federal Government. It includes all statutory regulations of Federal agencies, and is divided into 50 titles which represent broad subject areas of Federal regulations (e.g., Housing and Urban Development, Public Health, Public Welfare, or Transportation). Each title is divided into chapters which usually bear the name of the issuing agency. Each chapter is further subdivided into parts covering specific regulatory areas. The number preceding the CFR citation is the title or volume number. The CFR is kept up-to-date by the individual issues of the Federal Register, these two publications must be used together to determine the latest version of any given rule. Individual volumes of the CFR are revised at least once each calendar year and issued on a staggered quarterly basis. The CFR thus serves as a convenient reference for the citizen desiring a comprehensive source for general and permanent Federal regulations.

A General index to the entire Code of Federal Regulations, the CFR Index, is revised as of July 1 each year. The numerical Finding Aids, a cumulative list of CFR Sections affected is publised monthly and is cumulated for 12 months, keyed to the revision dates of the various CFR volumes.

The Federal Register and the Code of Federal Regulations are available in Federal depository libraries and most major libraries or Federal bookstores. Individual copies may be purchased from the Government Printing Office.

THE FEDERAL BUDGET

There are four budget documents; The Budget of the U.S. Government, The Budget of the U.S. Government Appendix, The Budget in Brief, and The Special Analyses, Budget of the U.S. Government.

The Budget of the U.S. Government provides information on spending programs that the President proposes for the coming fiscal year. For program identification purposes, the last three digits of the identification code in the Financial Information section of the program description is the functional code. (The functional code permits the budget to be stated in terms of the single function which represents its major purpose e.g., Education, Energy, Health, Transportation, etc.). These codes are contained in the back section of the Budget (Budget Outlays by Function).

Each chapter of the Appendix to the Budget is divided by programs authorized by existing legislation (including extensions and renewals) and programs requiring new legislation. The Appendix provides information on Federal programs, and is a more detailed document which identifies specific amounts (as shown in the budget) for each existing or proposed program. Supplemental proposals and amendments for the current year are also identified.

The Budget in Brief is a more concise document which provides a technical overview of the budget. It also provides graphic displays, and summary and historical tables on the Federal budget.

The Special Analyses, Budget of the U.S. Government contains special analyses that are designed to highlight specific program areas or provide other significant presentations of Federal budget data.

STATE CENTRAL INFORMATION RECEPTION AGENCIES

A State Central Information Reception Agency (SCIRA) is an office or unit of State government designated by the Governor to receive notification of grant awards issued under the provisions of Treasury Circular 1082. Federal agencies are required to notify the appropriate SCIRA in each State of Federal financial assistance awarded and subsequent related transactions including changes in the value or duration of a grant. For basic reporting (grants awarded to States or political subdivisions), Federal agencies submit a Report of Federal Action to the appropriate SCIRA using SF 424. Supplemental reporting (all other Federal assistance to any recipient) is submitted to the SCIRA using individual agency procedures. (See Appendix I of the Catalog for programs designated as basic or supplemental.) The SCIRA in each State is set up primarily to serve the Governor and the legislature. The extent to which it is equipped to serve others such as local governments or the general public varies from State to State.
